GUESTS FLEE FIRE IN HOTEL

PORTLAND, Me., July 6.—Twenty guests and the employes at the Valley View House on Peak's Island had narrow escapes with their lives early to-day, when a fire started in the structure that laid it in ashes before a sufficient fire-fighting force from the city could reach the scene of the blaze.

The guests were able to save most of their effects, but the destruction of the buildings and furnishings was complete. The damage was estimated at $15,000.

It is not known for certain how the fire originated, but it is believed that it started from the explosion of a lamp in the kitchen. The building stood in an isolated spot and the guests were wrapt in slumber. One of the nearest neighbors was awakened by a glare of light and saw a sheet of flame shoot up from the rear of the hotel.

Running to the building the neighbor soon had the guests and attaches of the place up and skurrying to safety. The fire department of the island was never meant apparently to combat any such blaze and it was unable to check the flames.

A telephone call to Portland was received, and as the firemen had just got through battling with a big blaze here there were twelve men aboard the fire boat which shot across to the island. But the call came too late for the building was about gone when Portland's help reached there.

NEW GRAND JURY SWORN IN TO-DAY

The new Grand Jury was to-day sworn into office before Judge Bishop in the first session of the Superior Criminal Court, and then retired after electing a foreman and clerk.

Nine business men are among the twenty-one sitting. Ernest H. Kittredge of Roxbury and John Smith of Charlestown were both excused from serving. Several others who desired to be released from duty were refused by the court.

The new supreme investigating body for this county will sit until the first Monday in January next.

To-day marked the beginning of the actual career of two promising young assistants in the District Attorney's office, Fisher Nesmith and Henry P. Fielding, both members of the bar, but acting as secretaries to District Attorney Hill. By special permission of the court, both are permitted to try cases and they will jointly try the appeal cases from the lower courts before Judge Bishop this month.

HELD AS BEING A HIGHWAYMAN

On the charge of robbing William Jignatiewcz of Campello of $168 in the South Boston flats last October, George Gaposki of Somerville appeared to-day before Judge Logan in South Boston Court and was held in $1,000 on probable cause for the Grand Jury. Gaposki, it was charged, enticed Jignatiewcz from Campello last October to the flats, where he threatened to kill the latter unless he gave up his money.

PRETTY GIRL FINED FOR JULY 4 SHOT

A pretty blonde girl who said her name was Daisy Lewis and that she lived "somewhere out of town," was fined $5 in the Municipal Court to-day for firing a revolver yesterday. When the clerk announced her fine she pulled a heavy auto veil over her face, and after paying hurriedly left the court. Twenty-five men and boys were fined $1 each by Judge Ely for violations of the Fourth of July ordinances.

Mr. Codman and his chauffeur, Charles McKearnon, pleaded guilty and were fined $10 each by Judge Cutler. Mr. Underwood and his chauffeur, Clarence R. Gray, were found not guilty by Judge Cutler. The following automobilists were found guilty of overspeeding and fined $10 each: Louis J. Martin of Melrose, Robert R. Greene of Swampscott, Cyrus Sargent of Salem, Charles B. TAFT AT CHAMPLAIN

PRESIDENT OPENS GREAT CELEBRATION

TICONDEROGA, N. Y., July 6.—Closely guarded on all sides by Secret Service agents, President Taft and his party arrived at old Fort Ticonderoga this afternoon to take part in the Lake Champlain tercentenary celebration. Long before the presidential train pulled into Addison Junction, the nearest station to the fort, more than 5,000 persons had gathered there to greet the nation's chief magistrate.

Half a dozen Secret Service men, who have been here for several days on the lookout for suspicious characters, mingled with the crowd, while half a hundred special deputy sheriffs strove to keep the gathering in check. The members of the Tenth Regiment, National Guard, State of New York, were lined up on each side of the tracks as the Taft special drew in. Cheers went up as the train slowed down, and they continued until long after the President showed himself. The first to board the special were Howland Pell of New York, David Williams and W. W. Richards, cashier of the First National Bank of Ticonderoga.

These gentlemen constituted a reception committee appointed to welcome the President and his party to Lake Champlain. After the exchange of greetings the President alighted from the train. The cheering which had continued all the while swelled to still greater volume and reverberated

JACKIES HELP FIREMEN SAVE GLOUCESTER

GLOUCESTER, July 6.—The business centre of the city was threatened to-day by a fire which broke out about 11 o'clock in the three-story wooden block occupied by Thomas H. Hunt, a furniture dealer, on Main street. The two upper floors were ruined, causing a loss of $16,000, and the flames spread to a three-story building adjoining, occupied by Charles J. Gray, a dealer in photographic supplies and sporting goods. Mr. Gray's loss from fire is slight, but the water damage will reach $9,000.

All the buildings on the street at this point are of wood and closely packed in, so that Chief Crowe feared the whole street would be swept. He ordered a second alarm, and favored by the fact that there was little wind, the firemen were able to get the fire under control just after noon.

A score or more of bluejackets from the battleship Maine, which is lying in the harbor, heard the alarms and rushed to the aid of the firemen. They helped string the hose and proved themselves good firemen, for which they received the thanks of Chief Crowe.

Captain Caperton of the Maine came ashore as soon as he learned of the seriousness of the fire, and to Chief Crowe he offered the services of a squad of 150 well-drilled fire fighters from the battleship in case there should be a need for them. By this time Chief Crowe had the fire so well under control that he decided not to call extra help.

HUNTINGTON AVENUE GROUNDS, July 6.—After two sessions of baseball yesterday the Red Sox and Washington Senators went at it again this afternoon in a double attraction, and although they worked overtime yesterday a good crowd of bugs was on hand to see this afternoon's performance. The first game was started at 2 o'clock.

To-day's games mark the final appearance of the Red Sox in Boston for over three weeks, for the Boston players leave to-night for New York, where they play the Highlanders one game and then take a long swing around the western end of the circuit, visiting Chicago, St. Louis, Detroit and Cleveland. Their next appearance at the Huntington avenue park will be on July 29, with the Browns.

Manager Lake was out after both contests to-day to try to creep up on the Athletics. He was confident of taking both, for he said that after his team has played the Senators with Walter Johnson in the box there is nothing to fear.

INSPECT ROUTE FOR NEW ELECTRIC ROAD

The Board of Railroad Commissioners left Boston to-day on a tour of inspection of the route desired for the proposed Boston, Lowell & Lawrence Interurban electric railroad, Congressman Butler Ames's project for connecting the big mill cities with Boston by a fast electric railroad. The commission went through Somerville, Medford, Arlington, Winchester, Woburn, Wilmington and Tewksbury to Lowell, and thence to Lawrence. The entire trip will be made in automobiles.

BOSTON HATTERS FIGHT WAGE CUT

Determined to resist a reduction in wages which would decrease their earning power fully 33 per cent., the sixteen men employed in the finishing department of Williamson & Sleeper, manufacturers of ladies', children's and misses' straw and felt hats at No. 110 Utica street, went on strike early to-day. A skilful man, they state, could average only $3 under the old scale, while under the new scale $2 would be high.

WASHINGTON PARK, Brooklyn, July 6.—The great struggle for the supremacy of the tail-enders continued to-day. The Doves are now in striking distance of the Dodgers and if they win to-day and to-morrow there will be only a slight difference in the percentage of the two teams.

Bowerman's men have been playing fine ball lately and are going at a clip that promises to take them up the pennant ladder before long. After the series here they go home for a long session on the South End grounds and every member of the team believes they will make a fine showing.

Bowerman believed that either Tuckey or Ferguson could put the kibosh on the Brooklyns this afternoon. "My pitchers are going finely right now," declared big Mike, "and I feel that our long losing streak is at an end. Every club has its slump once a season. We have had ours, and from now on we will give a good account of ourselves."

The Doves were full of vim and confidence when the battle began.

NARCOTICS GROUND FOR AN INJUNCTION

Arthur C. Goodwin, an artist, admits in a bill filed in the Superior Court to-day that he has been addicted to the use of narcotics, so much so that he was lost for ten days. He declares that while under their influence he signed a bill of sale for 150 paintings valued at $15,000 to Fred E. Elwell of Malden. Goodwin obtained an order from Judge Dana prohibiting Elwell from disposing of them. A hearing will be held to-morrow. Goodwin seeks to recover, alleging he was coerced into signing the bill.

CITIZENS PROTEST HOSPITAL LICENSE

Headed by Dr. Richard Wright, pastor of the Pilgrim Congregational Church, Cambridgeport, a number of property owners of Magazine street were present in the office of Mayor William F. Brooks in City Hall this afternoon to protest against the granting of a license to Miss Annie Radford for a maternity hospital at No. 84 Magazine street. The Board of Aldermen granted the license. Mayor Brooks has ten days in which to sign the order. He took the matter under advisement.

The Executive Council will hold its weekly meeting at 9:30 to-morrow, in order that the members may leave the State House early on their annual tour of inspection of the State Farm at Bridgewater.

STATE AND CITY HEADS SAY GOODBY TO WORLD RACERS

Governor Draper and Mayor Hibbard welcomed the four boy winners in the AMERICAN Around-the-World race and their escorts to-day, and incidentally the schoolboys who will make the recording braking tour of the world met for the first time.

These New England school boys, whose nerve and pluck won them the right to engage in the greatest race boys ever met in, faced each other in the office of the Around-the-World Tour department in the BOSTON AMERICAN building.

Each was accompanied by his chosen traveling companion, L. W. Sallinger, who won first honors in the contest, was with N. Sallinger; Benjamin Morris, the second, was accompanied by Peter Cohen; H. L. Whitman, the third, was with Dr. R. K. Noyes; and Harry Rudnick, the fourth, came with Michael Rudnick.

A few minutes later in two big automobiles the boys and their escorts were whirled to City Hall, where Mayor Hibbard received them. It was an occasion the boys will never forget. Neither will the Moyor, for the boys introduced to him are to fly the flag of Boston in a globe-belting contest.

"You'll Win," Says Mayor.

"I hope that you boys, who are afforded such an opportunity of seeing the world will spread the glory of New England, said the Mayor. You will see things and you will learn much that will be of great educational value to you, and I know that four wideawake lads, such as you must have been, to be victors in such a contest will be able to take advantage of these opportunities."

Mayor Hibbard told the boys how the eyes of all New England were turned to them and how New England expected them to bring home two world's records—the record time for traveling around the globe to the eastward and that for circling this planet in the shortest time ever made by going westward.

Mayor Hibbard then shook hands with each winner and his escort and extended a parting word of welcome to each.

As the body clambered into the big autos for the trip to the State House, the Mayor from the window of his executive office waved a parting adieu.

The boys and their escorts immediately upon their arrival at the State House were ushered into the executive offices of Governor Draper.

Welcomed by Governor.

"So these are the lads with their corts who are going to try and cut J Verne's record in half. I am heartily g to meet you all," said the Governor as arose from his desk to meet the pa

CITY PAYS 10TH OF BRIDGE COST

According to the report of the special commission to apportion the cost of the new Mystic avenue bridge connecting this city with Somerville, Boston must pay 10 per cent. of the cost of constructing. Somerville 4½ per cent., while the surrounding cities and towns benefitted by the new bridge will not have to share the expense. The bulk of the expense falls upon the Boston & Maine and Boston & Albany railroads, they jointly paying 67 per cent. of the cost of construction, under the supervision of the Boston & Maine.

Medford, Malden, Woburn, Winchester, Stoneham, Reading, Everett and Arlington are benefitted. The commissioners, George W. Bishop, Everett C. Bumps and Patrick H. Cooney, in their report, filed in the Superior Court, declare that while these cities and towns will receive benefit, under the statute they will not have to bear a share of the expense.

NEWSBOYS ARE OFF TO CAMP

With faces wreathed in smiles and aglow with expectation, the first group of newsboys left the South Station at 2:40 p. m. to-day for the second annual opening of the newsboys' Summer camp, founded and supported by President James J. Storrow of the Chamber of Commerce, on the Albert C. Burrage estate at Halifax, Mass. The boys were in charge of Messrs. N. J. Beals and George Cohen of Harvard, who supervise the camp. They were a noisy, happy lot of youngsters.

The camp is situated near Lake Monponsett. The boys go down in parties of twelve and stay a week. They are chosen from the 5,000 licensed newsboys in Boston by President Frasca of the Newsboys' Union. The boys have slept in tents, but this year Mr. Storrow is going to build a bungalow for them. A professional cook looks after the food, and all kinds of field and water sports are provided.

SCORE ESCAPE OVER ROOFS IN WEST END FIRE

Two people were badly burned, a girl jumped from the fire escape to the ground while over a score of people were forced to flee over rooftops, down staircases and through halls filled with smoke so dense they could hardly see, during a fire in the five-and-a-half-story dwelling at No. 23 Wall street, West End, early to-day. The blaze is believed to have been set by an incendiary.

Many of the occupants were carried to the street by the police and firemen partially overcome by smoke. The fire is thought to have been of incendiary origin, and had gained much headway before it was discovered.

Sarah Auerbach, twenty years old, who lives with her brother Jacob on the top floor of the building was awakened by the cries of the people below, and grasping her brother by the hand started for the street.

Feet Burned by Flames.

They were assisted down the stairs, through the blinding smoke by police officers and firemen to the second floor, where brother and sister became separated. Sarah started down the iron stairs leading to the street in her bare feet, but the stairs had become so hot that they burned her feet, and she rushed back ot the second floor screaming with pain.

She groped her way to the fire escape in the rear of the building, and before a ladder could be raised to take her down, jumped to the ground, in Cotton place, a distance of fifteen feet. An ambulance was summoned and the girl was rushed to the Relief Hospital, where it was found she was suffering from a sprained ankle and badly burned feet.

Morris Cohen, in trying to prevent himself from falling down the stairs grasped the hot iron railing of the stairs and received several burns. He was treated by a doctor nearby.

Work of Incendiary.

The fire started in an unoccupied store in the basement, and from all appearances was the work of an incendiary. It was discovered by Policemen Butler and Ramsey of the Joy street station, who aroused the occupants.

On the first floor lives C. Koski ,his wife and three children, and the flames were rapidly eating their way into their apartments when the policemen, with Captain Sherin of engine 6, broke open the door and carried them to the street almost overcome by smoke.

Isidore Brickman, his wife and three children live on the second floor, and were aroused by the police and made their way to the street in safety.

Joseph Sneiderman, his wife, three children and a boarder, David Kimmel, were taken to the street by firemen and protected by a stream of water played on the stairs.

Taken Over Roof Tops.

Morris Cohen, his wife, one child and father-in-law, Harry Pedluski, an aged man, were taken up over the roof by the police. The old man could barely stand and had to be carried over the roof and down into the next building at No. 25. He was nearly overcome by smoke.

Mr. and Mrs. Auerbach were away from home, and Jacob and Sarah were alone on the top floor during the fire.

The firemen quickly got the flames under control, although the basement was burned out and part of the first floor and stairs. The loss is estimated at between $800 and $1,000.

State Fire Marshal Silas Smith started an investigation into the cause of the fire to-day and arrests are expected to follow.

ROCKET STICK KILLS BABE

PITTSBURG, July 6.—While watching a pyrotechnic display last night Mrs. Warren M. Coddington of 913 Lang avenue felt her three-months-old baby crumple up in her arms, and was horrified to see the stick of a spent rocket impaled in the child's eye. The babe was dead.

FREE FILIPINO CIGARS START UNION PROTEST

Union cigarmakers of Boston believe the Tobacco Trust is behind the Senate proposal to increase the revenue tax on cigars from $3 to $6 a thousand and to admit free of duty every year an enormous number of Philippine cigars. They believe it is a blow to break up the Cigarmakers' Union through a higher tariff and competition by poorly paid Filipinos.

Against the revenue increase 2,500 Massachusetts cigarmakers sent to-day protests to Senators Lodge and Crane of Massachusetts and Senator Aldrich of Rhode Island. The protests were sent through the executive committee of the union and are signed by Vice-President L. Wenier of Cigarmakers' Union No. 97 of Boston. Co-operating with the Boston men is President William Standcumbe of the New England Local Conference, which represents 6,000 workers in the trade. Similar action will be taken, it is expected, by similar organizations all over New England and all over the country.

President Taft favors admitting 150,000,000 Philippine cigars duty free every year. The Senate committee favored reducing the number to 75,000,000, but Mr. Taft wants his number to stand. In reply to a protest made to him by Marcus L. Lloyd of Tariffville, Ct., President Taft wrote:

"I do not agree with you in the slightest with reference to the Philippine bill and shall continue to do every thing I can, not only to secure the passage of the act, but to secure the restoration of the amount of tobacco and cigars which is in the section as originally introduced. It is a matter to which I have given a great deal of consideration and in respect to which my opinions are fixed."

Vee-President Cronin of the International Cigar Makers' Union is the official who has informed the local union of President Taft's stand and states that the tobacco trust has already bought $5,000,000 cigars in the Philippines, which it is holding until it can bring them into the United States free of duty.

ALDRICH NAMES HIS TARIFF LIEUTENANTS

WASHINGTON, July 6.—Senator Aldrich has picked the Senate Republican conferees on the tariff bill. According to his present plan they will be, besides himself, Hale of Maine, Penrose of Pennsylvania, Burrows of Michigan and Smoot of Utah. This will give New England two members, the North Atlantic division one, the Middle West one and the far West one. Senators Aldrich and Hale will look out for the manufactures of their sections, Penrose will take care of the manufacturing and mining interests of Pennsylvania and neighboring States, Burrows will not neglect the beet sugar and lumber interests among others, while Smoot will show the proper solicitude of the mining niterests of the Rocky Mountain section and the fruit growers of the Pacific slope.

CATCHES BIG COD; WINS $35 PRIZE

John Bruno is richer by $35 to-day on account of his skill as a fisherman. He made two record-breaking catches of cod on the excursion steamer Satellite yesterday, and won the purse made up by the passengers for the largest fish caught. He pulled up two cod, one weighing 10⅝ pounds, the other 9½ pounds. Te catch was made near the Boston lightship. Sixty men competed.

STEEL TRIALS GO OVER TILL FALL

The trials of the men indicted in the Boston agreement steel cases, also those involved in the Codman street land deal, will not be called before September. District Attorney Hill feels that, as July and August are hot months, there would be heavy burdens on the judge, jury and witnesses. It has been the Summer custom to try only those who are in jail, not persons out on bail.

GOTHAM TONGS KNEW CHARLES AS RENEGADE

According to the New York World, Charles Swen, or Warry S. Charles, as he calls himself, one of the five Chinamen sentenced to the electric chair in this city, and who has all the time declared his innocence of the plot to shoot up Chinatown, had an evil reputation with the police of Gotham. There for years he was a stormy petrel in the Chinese quarter, alternately hunted by the police and his own countrymen, who considered him a renegade and a spy.

Once his wife, who has stood by him loyally through his trial here, sued him for divorce for cruelty. She is a white woman of English descent. They patched up that affair. They have two sons, Adrian and Varian.

Many of the orthodox, queue-wearing Chinamen of Mott and Pell streets regarded him as a renegade who gave tips to the New York newspapers and information to the police which resulted in raids on opium joints and gambling dens. It was said, too, that he did detective work for the Parkhurst Society.

Attacked by Foes.

Frequent attempts were made to "do" him. In October, 1892, Chinaman attacked him and left him for dead at No. 18 Mott street. On another occasion he resisted arrest on a charge that was disproved later. The patrolman thrust the end of his night stick with fearful force into Charles's eye. In consequence the Chinaman had brain fever, from which he nearly died.

Charles was a leader of the Hip Sing Tong in New York. In their clubhouse on the lower Bowery, near Doyers street, hung a big portrait of Frank Moss, counsel to the Parkhurst society and one time police commissioner. Here the braves of the Hip Sing Tong and the Ong Leon Tong were in frequent combat, shooting at one another with revolvers.

Charles kept a billiard room on Doyers street for a while. His knowledge of English gained him the place of interpreter for J. Thomas Scharf, United States inspector of Chinese immigration. Charles got $4 a day and a gold badge of office. The police charged with much indignation that on the strength of his badge and position Charles was "grafting" in Chinatown, blackmailing guileless Chinamen and threatening to deport them or keep their relatives out of this country unless they "saw" him.

Acquitted in New York.

In 1893 Detective Sergeants Heidelberg and Nugent arrested Charles. Chu Shea, of No. 33 Mott street, who happened to belong to the Ong Leong Tong, charged that Charles extorted $75 from him on the pretense that he could keep out of New York Chu's partner, Hom Si Yeng, who was returning by way of Canada, from a visit to China. Seventy-five dollars in marked money it is found in Charles's pockets. He vowed he borrowed it from Chu Shea to pay the rent of his billiard room. At the trial Charles's counsel and Detective Heidelberg had a verbal duel:

"Did you take the marked money from Charles?" asked the lawyer.

"I did."

"Where is it now?"

"I have got it yet."

"Why didn't you give it up?"

"Did you ever know a detective to give up anything?" put in Police Justice Meade.

"Well, they do say the Chinese have given Heidelberg $1,500 in this case," remarked the lawyer.

"Not a cent," declared the detective vigorously.

"Don't the Chinese pay well?" asked the lawyer.

"You ought to know, for the worst scoundrel of the lot has hired you," retorted the detective.

Charles was acquitted. He came to Boston about ten years ago and has prospered as proprietor of a big laundry in Myrtle street.

NEGRO KILLED FOR INSULT.

YOUNGSTOWN, O., July 6.—John Conklin, a negro, was shot through the heart by Roy Forker, the police say, because he insulted a white woman.

WORLD RACE WINNERS OFF ON THURSDAY

"You boys will not only have the distinction of taking part in a great contest, but when you come back you can truthfully say that you have seen more of the world than your Governor. I have seen much of the West and some of the East, but I have yet to see as much of the world as you lads will on this trip, which I trust will be a record breaker and win fame for New England."

You boys have got something more on me than the fact that you are going to have such an enjoyable trip," added the Governor, smiling, "and that is about thirty-five years in age. It is worth a great deal more to you than any trip around the world. Personally, I wish that I could go with you rather than have to spend the Summer at the work which I am obliged to do. But business before pleasure. I trust that you will have a most enjoyable journey."

Governor Draper then shook hands with each member of the party and urged them to strive and make a record that will stand as a tribute to the speed and enterprise of Boston boys.

This visit to the Mayor and Governor, following a pleasant reception in the BOSTON AMERICAN building, where the champions of the contest were all made acquainted with each other, was an inspiring preliminary to the race. To-morrow night at one minute past midnight each New England contestant will be upon his mettle, for it will be up to him to make the flying race around the world and to beat the friends he met to-day if he can.

Race Begins To-morrow Night.

Within five days three parties of New England boys will be on their way to make a record, the like of which would have read like an unbelievable fairy tale a few years ago. They are to travel by the finest and swiftest of railroad trains, stop at the best hotels for the few hours they will have time to stop, ride the waves of the oceans on the swiftest, greatest steamers, and, above all, scan schedules, time cards and their watches, for there'll be not a moment to lose from the time the trains start here in Boston until the tired engines come panting back some forty days hence.

In Boston and New England the world race begins to-morrow night at one minute past midnight, when Benjamin Morris, with Peter Cohen of New York, his escort, starts from the South station for New York to catch the fleet steamer Savoie in the first leg of the race across the Atlantic. The Savoie sails at 10 o'clock Thursday morning, so Morris will have only three hours in Gotham.

Second Winners Go West.

The second racers go westward. H. L. Whitman, with Dr. Rufus K. Noyes, and Harry Rudnick, with Michael Rudnick as escort, start toward the land of the setting sun at 1:45 Wednesday afternoon. Over mountain and prairie they will travel as fast as steam will carry them to the Pacific, where they are to board a Pacific grayhound at Vancouver. The Empress of Japan, the best boat plying the western ocean, is to be their steed on that long lap of their course. They will try to make record time to Yokohama.

Next Monday, at one minute past midnight, the last of the New England world belting parties gets away. At that time Leo W. Sallinger, with N. Sallinger, his uncle, leaves the South station at 10 o'clock. The next morning they will sail from New York on the Kronprinzessin Cecilie. They steam straight away for Plymouth, England, then over the channel and to Ostend. From Ostend connections will be made with the Nord express. By this train they will travel across the empire of the Czar to old Moscow, and then plunge through the steppes of Siberia.

The race which Sallinger and Morris are to run, going East all of the time, will be one which will be watched with the keenest interest in all New England. Which boy will bring the laurels back with him? Each of the boys stoutly declares he will be the winner. A tie race can hardly be run.

There's a thousand chances whereby the race may be lost or won, or lost and then won again in the 25,000 miles these two New England racers will have to cover.

Must Not Lose a Minute.

Neither Sallinger nor Morris can afford to lose a single minute from the time they leave Boston behind them until they step from the platform of the car at their home station forty days later. That's the unheard of time they are pledged to try to make.

The loss of a minute may lose the race for the eager contestant. Both boys must also watch the racers from New York, Chicago, San Francisco and Los Angeles. The boys from those cities are just as eager to win as the boys from New England. Sectional pride will run high and each party will be eager to take the slightest fair advantage of the others.

To-day the far Western boys are whirling eastward across the continent to catch a swift steamer in New York on July 10. Young Morris is booked to catch them on board the trans-Siberian express at Moscow, if not before that time. This is despite the fact that the Los Angeles racers are on their way now, having left to-day.

Morris and his party expect to meet the Chicago racers, who are scheduled to start from that city at 2:30 on Wednesday. This gives the Boston boy an advantage of a start nine and one-half hours to the good over the Chicago boys, who are to be piloted by Charles C. Fitzmorris, the holder of the old world's belting record of sixty and one-half days.

Greatest Race Yet Planned.

The rivals may meet each other on their race at almost any place on the beaten lines of travel, but the Boston boys are nowhere handicapped. Undoubtedly this is the greatest race ever planned and every distance annihilating vehicle is to be pressed into service to help the plucky American boys who come from all over this broad land [illegible].

Leo Sallinger and N. Sallinger, his escort, observed the Fourth yesterday with a gay gathering at the home of the elder Sallinger, No. 4 Hawes avenue, Dorchester, which was in the nature of a farewell party. Benjamin Morris and his escort, Peter Cohen, were in the gathering and it was a sort of triple celebration. The two rivals in the search for the world's record, while declaring a lasting friendship, vowed to do their utmost to beat the other in the whirl around the globe. There were over fifty in the party which gathered to do the boys and their escorts honor.

IMMIGRATION FALLS OFF AT BOSTON

Immigration at Boston has been gaining in ratio for months, although figures given out by Commissioner George B. Billings for this port for the fiscal year ending June 30 showed a decrease over the fiscal year 1908 of 4,108. During the last fiscal year 48,134 aliens landed in Boston. Two-thirds of them stayed in New England and more than half in Massachusetts. As regards nationalities there has been quite a change in the character of immigration to Boston. More people have come here from Scandinavian countries and the British Isles, and fewer Hebrews and not so many inhabitants of Southern Europe, excepting Italians. There has been an increase of Italian immigration since January last.

BATTLESHIPS QUIT BOSTON TO-MORROW

Charlestown was one of the busiest naval stations in the world to-day, for preparations are being made for the sailing to-morrow of a big portion of the North Atlantic squadron for Rockport, Mass., which is the regular rendezvous of this fleet of Uncle Sam's sea fighters. At high tide the fleet will set sail under the command of Rear Admiral Schroeder, and fire thirteen guns as a parting salute to Admiral Swift. The shore battery will boom out a reply.

The ships which will sail are the battleships Connecticut, Kansas, Vermont and Louisiana. The only torpedo boats which will be left at the yard will be the McDonough, the Blakeley and the De Long. There will be 3,500 men manning the fleet which will coal at Rockport.

After these warships depart those remaining at the navy yard, beside torpedo boats, will be the battleship Illinois, which was sent here for a stay or two years and repairs estimated at $2,000,000, the battleship Missouri, cruiser Des Moines and the scout cruisers Salem and Birmingham. The Birmingham arrived last night from Newport, and will stay about ten days for examination and repairs.

Four of the torpedo boats which sailed Saturday last for a short cruise to sea came back to-day. They are the Stockton, the Porter, the Biddle and the Dupont.

PRESIDENT TAFT'S FOURTH OF JULY SMILE

HAPPIER!!
HAPPIEST!!!

These photographs, taken by R. W. Sears, were posed by President Taft at Beverly for the Boston American, and show the Chief Executive's famous smile at the moment that it begins and then as it spreads over his kindly face until it ends in a real gale of laughter. "Wait till you see my golf smile," the President said to one of the photographers.

NATION'S CHIEF AT CHAMPLAIN FETE

through the hills and across the lake. The little gunboats Burlington and Plattsburg, a United States naval flotilla, which were lying just off the shore, then fired the presidential salute of twenty-one guns.

Automobiles were waiting to convey the distinguished visitors to the fort, some two miles away, by wagon road. As the President, smiling, bowing and saluting right and left, was escorted toward one of the motor cars, four Secret Service agents, who had accompanied him on the train, formed a close guard around him, while these in turn were surrounded by the six others who had been previously on the ground.

In the auto with the president were his military aide, Captain Butt; Adjutant-General Henry Howland Pell and David Williams. One of the Secret Service men occupied the seat with the chauffeur, while the others followed in other cars. The rest of the party, which included Right Hon. James Bryce, the British Ambassador, and M. Jusserand, the French Ambassador, were also escorted in motor cars to the fort. The presidential party off for the scene of festivities, the crowd then made a wild dash for the short quarter of a mile cut to the fort. The soldiers followed.

Great Handshaking Feat.

When the President reached the fort 20,000 persons were there to greet him. Everybody wanted to shake his hand. He and his party were first taken to the West Barracks, the only part of the historic ruins, which has thus far been restored. It was here that Colonel Ethan Allen demanded the surrender of the fort, "In the name of the great Jehovah and of the Continental Congress."

In the West Barracks the President was met by Mrs. Stephen H. Pell, whose family has owned Fort Ticonderoga and the surrounding six hundred acres since 1818, and who, with the aid of her father, Colonel Robert M. Thompson, has undertaken at her own expense, the great work of restoring the historic site.

Mr. Taft complimented Mrs. Pell upon the fine patriotic spirit she has shown in her purposed naturalization of the old fort. After viewing the barracks and ruins around, the President and members of his party were escorted by a detachment of United States Marines to the speakers' stand. There Governor Hughes of New York and Governor Prouty of Vermont were waiting to welcome him. The cheering was renewed and the bands played national airs. Less than one-twentieth of the spectators were able to find seats.

After his address the President and the members of his immediate party were taken over to the old Pell mansion, known as the Pell Pavilion, where light refreshments were served.

Visit to Fort Frederick.

Subsequently the presidential party boarded the steamboat Ticonderoga which carried them to the ruins of Fort Frederick a short distance further up Lake Champlain. There were no formalities here, and only a brief stay was made. The visitors again boarded the Ticonderoga and were conveyed to Port Henry, where they boarded the President's special and were carried to Bluff Point. Here they had dinner at Hotel Champlain, where the party was billed to spend the night.

Practically the entire program to-day was devoted to observances by the descendants of the men who fought to retain for France the country explored and founded by their illustrious countryman, Samuel de Champlain.

A large number of the French societies of Vermont and other New England States and of Canada participated in a parade in the forenoon, in which there were many floats representing some of the events which followed the coming of the French explorer. The parade was reviewed along the line of march by representatives of the city, State and church.

Races on the Lake.

Yacht and power boat races and other forms of aquatic sports were held on the lake during the day, which will conclude with an illuminated boat parade in the evening.

The early weather conditions to-day were not very promising. It had rained heavily during the night, and although the rain had ceased this morning the sun was still obscured behind banks of clouds.

Previous to the starting of the parade an open-air meeting was held in a park, and a number of addresses were delivered in French. Among the speakers were Adelord Caron of Woonsocket, R. I., and Dr. George A. Bouther of Brockton, who also read an original poem. Music was furnished by the Champlain choir and a band.

The President is scheduled to speak at Cliff Haven, about three miles south of Plattsburg, at 9:45 to-morrow morning. Subsequently he will return to Hotel Champlain, which is only a mile away, where he will hold a private reception at 10:30 a. m. to the representatives of foreign governments and members of the New York Legislature. After luncheon at the hotel the presidential party will leave by train for the Plattsburg barracks.

The President is to review military, civic and fraternal organizations there at 2 p. m. At 8 p. m. there will be literary exercises at Plattsburg barracks, at which brief addresses will be made by the President, United States Senator Root, Speaker Cannon, Governor Hughes of New York, Governor Prouty of Vermont, Ambassador Bryce of Great Britain, Ambassador Jusserand of France and Rudolph Lemieux, Postmaster-General of Canada.

At 8 p. m. there will be a banquet to the President at Hotel Champlain, with post-prandial addresses by the President, Vice-President and other distinguished guests. On Thursday the presidential party is scheduled to visit Burlington, Vt., where the tercentenary celebration will be continued.

CHUNK OF COAL HURLED AT TAFT CAR SMASHES WINDOW

NEW YORK, July 6.—A chunk of coal weighing three or four pounds was hurled at President Taft's special train just as it left New London, Ct., for this city. The missile crashed through a window in the coach next to the President's private car Mayflower and smashed the glass.

It was hurled with sufficient force to have seriously injured any person who happened to be in its path. Although no one was struck, the secret service men with the President are investigating, and word has been sent to New London for the arrest of any one whose actions last night have aroused suspicion.

HUMANE SOCIETIES WILL HAVE A HOME

A building for the use of the humane societies of Boston such as the late George T. Angell, late president of the S. P. C. A., hoped for, will be erected as soon as a site is selected and funds are available, and dedicated to Dr. Angell. This was announced to-day by a committee consisting of Edward H. Clement, Nathaniel T. Kidder and Charles S. Hackemann. There is now in the treasury $20,000.

SHOCK HURLS LINEMAN OFF HIGH POLES

Two telegraph linemen, hurled from the tops of thirty-foot poles by electric shocks out in Dorchester to-day, were rushed into the city on the first in-bound train from Forest avenue station of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad, the train speeding by all stations in its errand of mercy. At South Boston yard the unconscious men were transferred to an ambulance and taken to the Massachusetts General Hospital.

The linemen were Augustus Smith and William Matthews. They were members of a Western Union overhead crew stringing tlegraph wires along Forest avenue across the railroad tracks. While the rest of the gang pulled the wire over the tops of the poles Matthews and Smith made the pole connections. The wire came in contact with an electric light wire. Both were wet from rain, which increased the voltage of the shock received by Smith and Matthews. The latter dropped unconscious to the ground. While the other workmen were running to his aid Smith dropped from the top of the next pole. Both men were burned by the shock and seriously hurt by their fall.

They were put in the baggage car of an in-bound local at Forest avenue station near by, and the gang urged the engineer to make speed. The train shot by Dorchester, Harvard street, Mt. Bowdoin and Bird street station, to the surprise of people waiting to get on or off the train at those points.

A police ambulance, ordered by telephone, was waiting at Dover street bridge across the South Boston yard to take the men to the hospital, so that a record trip was made from the scene of the accident to the operating tables.

RANG FALSE ALARMS; $25.

For ringing false fire alarms Charles Boland of Washington street, Dorchester, was fined $25 by Judge Reed in the Dorchester court to-day. Patrolman Smith said that early yesterday morning the fire apparatus was called out by five false alarms, and he traced them to Boland. The defendant admitted that he pulled one alarm.

The Dawn of a New Delight

Foods Shot from Guns

These are the days of Puffed Wheat and Puffed Rice. The demand for these foods has now reached the rate of a million packages monthly. You are missing more than you know until you taste their delights.

Here are two foods so unique and so curious that there is hardly a way to describe them.

Think of unbroken kernels of wheat or rice, puffed to eight times their natural size.

Grains crisp and gigantic—nut like and wholesome—four times as porous as bread.

Every starch granule is literally blasted to pieces, so the digestive juices act instantly.

Do you wonder that these enticing new cereals are displacing the old-time foods?

Hot Weather Foods

Here are ready-cooked cereals—hearty, substantial. The world's two greatest grains prepared in their most delightful form.

Here are two cereals, made more digestible than cereals ever were made before. They form no tax on the stomach.

And here is variety—wheat and rice. Two foods that differ vastly, yet they are prepared alike.

Serve them with cream, or fruit, or in a bowl of milk. Hungry children love to eat them dry.

Think what such foods mean to you—for breakfasts, luncheons, suppers—during these Summer months.

Prof. Anderson's Invention

And this is how we prepare them:

The whole wheat or rice kernels are put into sealed guns. Then the guns are revolved for sixty minutes in a heat of 550 degrees.

That fierce heat turns the moisture in the grain to steam, and the pressure becomes tremendous.

Then the guns are unsealed—the steam explodes. Instantly every starch granule is blasted into a myriad particles.

The kernels of grain are expanded eight times. Yet the coats are unbroken, the shapes are unaltered. We have the original kernels of grain made mammoth and crisp and digestible.

Order a Package Now

Please order one package—say the ten-cent package of Puffed Wheat. Serve it tomorrow morning.

Then watch the children's faces. Listen and hear what they say.

If your folks are delighted, serve them Puffed Rice the next time, and learn which they like the better.

You want on your table the most wholesome, most delicious foods in existence. A trial will tell you that these are such foods. And there is no other way to convince you.

Please order them now.

SECRET SERVICE MEN GUARDING MRS. TAFT FROM ALL INTRUDERS

BY FRED J. McISAAC.

Special Representative of the Boston American at Beverly.

BEVERLY, July 6.—Until she has sufficiently regained her health, Mrs. Taft will not entertain or be entertained by the Summer colony at the North Shore. This was given out to-day from the Summer "White House" at Burgess Point. It was also learned that President Taft, before going away, had left orders with the secret service men that under no circumstances was Mrs. Taft to be disturbed. It was announced that until the President returned for a permanent stay here the Tafts will live in comparative retirement.

Mrs. Taft is keeping in seclusion as much as possible, and her physician, Dr. Delaney, S. A., of Washington, has ordered that she get all the rest and quiet possible. Since her arrival she has been seen by but a few of her most intimate friends, such as the Boardmans and the Meyers.

Enjoys First Drive.

Mrs. Taft plans to go out in her auto every afternoon at sunset, after the heat of the day. She took her first drive yesterday and seemed to enjoy it thoroughly. Although somewhat pale and tired, she seemed in good spirits and bowed to those who recognized her while on the ride. Most of the residents who knew the President's auto by the livery of the colored footman with the chauffeur stood at the roadside with hats off as the machine passed. Mrs. Taft spent most of the Sabbath on the broad piazza in company with her sister, Mrs. Lewis Moore.

North Shore folks are already beginning to leave their cards at the Taft home, as it is well understood among them that Mrs. Taft will not be able to receive for some time.

Constant Guard About House.

A squad of secret service men is constantly around the Summer White House to meet all callers, and the town of Beverly has sent two special policemen to stand at the driveway. Trades people are required to explain their missions to the officers, and they are not allowed to go in until the housekeeper, Mrs. Jaffrey, has been communicated with. If she approves, they are admitted. Several tradsmen had hoped to see Mrs. Taft, thinking that with her they could make different arrangements than had been planned by the housekeeper, but the housekeeper's word is supreme in this line.

There seems to be a kindly conspiracy among the Summer residents as to who shall do the most to relieve Mrs. Taft of some of the work in caring for the lively boy of the White House, Charlie Taft. Charlie has made several friends, among them Dick Hammond, son of John Hays Hammond, and the three Amory boys, all about his age. He was on the links at the Montserrat course to-day in a foursome with the Amory boys, and his side won the play, one up.

For boyish activity, the President's son has already made a name for himself on the North Shore. A youthful lover of outdoor life and sports, the unassuming youngster, whose father is at the head of the nation, has demonstrated in the few days he has been at the "Summer Capital" that the other lads of his age would have to "go some" to be as busy as he is.

Young Taft was the first of the official household to be up and about to-day. He took a short walk around the grounds, and when he sat down at the breakfast table with his mother, it was with an appetite that would do justice only to a boy who was half-famished.

"Charlie," as his young fiends on the North Shore call him, made a hit with old and young alike during the motor boat races held under the auspices of the Jubilee Yacht Club, of which his father is an honorable member.

"Go It, You Fellows."

"Go it, you fellows," whooped the youngster, as he leaped up and down the yacht club float, watching the tiny boats cut the water. "Why, they don't know how to run a motor boat. Yes, they do. Now they're coming. Go it, you, on the outside. Got it! Hurrah!"

Young Taft witnessed all of the motor boat races which were part of the Fourth of July celebration. If there was anything else in Beverly he didn't see it was because it was not worth seeing.

Things began to hum about the Taft cottage at 7 in the morning. Charlie went down to the garage and took out the electric runabout. He shot down to a fireworks store in the town and laid in a stock of fireworks, a cap cane, a toy pistol and other noise inducers. He then returned to the Taft house and quickly made his presence heard. He set off whole bunches of firecrackers on the lawn and ran about the veranda exploding the cap cane by hitting the floor with it.

Mrs. Taft came to the door. "If you must set off firecrackers," she cautioned him, "go out to the yacht. You must not do it around here."

Master Charles then went to the Sylph in the yacht's speedy power tender and spent several hours aboard of her. With Lieutenant Roger Williams he crossed the bay in the tender to the Jubilee Yacht Club, where he witnessed the races from the clubhouse float.

Charlie was introduced to many notables and bore himself with amusing dignity in one so young.

Likes Summer Home.

"I think it is splendid down here," he said, "and I expect that we will have one fine time. I don't think I was ever at a Summer place I liked so well. The fishing is good here, too. I caught several fish this morning."

In the afternoon young Taft went to the Montserrat golf links, where he met the Amory boys—Francis, Richard and Harcourt—and Richard Motley. These are lads of his own age and sons of prominent residents of the North Shore. The boys went over the course together.

Miss Mabel Boardman called for Charles and took him over to the Amory house for luncheon.

The youngsters had a jolly time together. In the evening the boys went to the Taft cottage and from the piazza watched the display of fireworks set off on the Beverly water front, across the cove.

Mrs. Taft was well enough to drive out in the landauette car through Beverly Farms and Pride's Crossing. Dr. Delaney reports that she is much improved in health and is enjoying her new surroundings.

Ambassador Nabuco of Brazil and T. Jefferson Coolidge called at the Taft cottage. Mrs. Levi Leiter also left her card.

The dispatch boat Dolphin, bringing Secretary of the Navy George von L. Meyer to his Summer home, arrived in Salem Harbor, making, with the Minnesota and the Sylph, a squadron of Government vessels at anchor in the bay.

President Leaves Beverly.

President Taft left Beverly on schedule time for his trip to Norwich. His party in three cars was preceded by the car of Superintendent of the Metropolitan Park System Herbert West, which led the way. The President and his party rode into Boston through the park boulevards along the ocean front. The President expressed himself as much impressed with the beauty of the drive and the scenery along the route.

About everybody on the North Shore who owns an auto or carriage drove by the President's house with the hope of seeing some of the Taft family.

Society was well represented in this procession, and several of them knew the Tafts well enough to leave cards.

CONGRESSMAN CUSHMAN DIES

NEW YORK, July 6.—Francis W. Cushman, representative in Congress from Tacoma, Wash., died at 5 a. m. to-day in Roosevelt Hospital from pneumonia. At his bedside, besides the doctors and nurses, were United States Senator Samuel H. Piles of Washington and Andrew S. Burleigh of this city, a lifelong friend.

Congressman Cushman underwent an operation a short time ago and pneumonia resulted. Senator Piles and Mr. Burleigh, who had been with the patient almost constantly since his condition became serious, said they would make arrangements for the sending of the body to Washington.

TAFT'S LANDLORD SERIOUSLY ILL

The condition of Robert D. Evans, Beverly, owner of the estate where President Taft is spending the Summer, is reported critical to-day at the Massachusetts Homeopathic Hospital. Mr. Evans had a rib broken by a fall from a horse in Beverly a week ago, and was taken to the hospital for treatment, and his condition is causing alarm to his family and business associates. Mr. Evans has offices at No. 50 Congress street. He is also a director in the United States Mining Company, the United States Mining and Smelting Company, the Central-Eureka Mining Company, and is a trustee of the Museum of Fine Arts.

Mrs. Flynn was taken to the Lynn Hospital in an ambulance, treated there and taken home. Other passengers were thrown about, but none was hurt.

The passenger train was rounding a curve and ran into the rear of the gravel train. The train was not injured, and after backing to the West Lynn station to allow Mrs. Flynn to be taken off it proceeded on its trip.

PALERMO GUARDED BY STRIKE TROOPS

PALERMO, Italy, July 6.—This city is in a state of siege, the result of the general strike of maritime workers and others. To-day the government has a cordon of troops about the city guarding every avenue of entrance. Squads of troops are placed at every railroad station, and the strictest discipline prevails. Premier Giolitti of Italy began a long conference with the Mayor of the city, who travelled to Rome last night, so grave has the situation become.

HOUSE PREPARES FOR TARIFF BILL

WASHINGTON, July 6.—Expecting that the Senate will complete its consideration of the tariff bill this week, Representative Dwight of New York, the Republican whip, to-day sent out telegrams requesting members of the majority to be present when the House meets on Thursday. The hot weather and long continued debate in the Senate caused many of the members of the House to return to their homes or to seek cool breezes at distant resorts. As soon as the Senate passes the tariff measure it will be sent to the House, and Speaker Cannon and the Republican leaders desire that no time shall be lost in sending the bill to conference.

CELEBRATES FOURTH, AND DIES IN CHAIR

AUBURN, N. Y., July 6.—Cieseppe Sanducci was to-day electrocuted for the assassination of Joe Sardato, a United States secret service man, in Belfast, December 17, 1907. He had been granted a twenty-four-hour respite by Warden Benham in order to enjoy existence for Independence Day, and went to the chair with the request that his disgraceful end be kept secret from his parents in Rome.

TEMPERANCE BAR PROVES A FAILURE

DES MOINES, July 5.—The temperance saloon on West Eighth street and Grand avenue is to be abandoned by A. S. Kirkhart, owner. A deal is now pending whereby the saloon and its fixtures are to be sold to Ira Stitzel. Kirkhart to-day refused to give his reason for abandoning the temperance saloon. The saloon was first started several weeks ago on a new plan. Soft drinks were to be sold over the bar, and no one allowed to treat. This feature attracted a great many people who were enlisted in the temperance saloon, although Kirkhart was severely criticised at the time.

BIG SHOE SALE ALL THIS WEEK

The sale of Luddy & Currier's shoes by the Sheinwald Shoe Syndicate at Nos. 40 and 42 Summer street is setting a new mark in the history of shoe sales. The bankrupt factory stock of Luddy & Currier was obtained at a ridiculously low cash price by the syndicate from a leading jobber. The store has been crowded to an overflow since the sale started last Thursday, and fresh stock is brought forward hourly to fill the gaps caused by the rapid selling. This sale continues this week, and as the purchase was an unusually large one everybody attending is being properly fitted at a great saving.

WOMAN FASTS 49 DAYS AND WORKS

LOS ANGELES, July 6.—Mrs. Lillian M. Hoag has just ended a fast of forty-nine days to cure herself of sickness. Her first "meal" consisted of a small cantaloupe. Throughout Mrs. Hoag has done her own housework and washing.

PANAMA BABY COMING.

NEW YORK, July 6.—The steamship Colon arriving from Panama to-day brought to New York forty babies. This is vacation time on the Isthmus and Uncle Sam's workers and their wives and little ones are headed for their homes. Among the babes was seven weeks old Anita May, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hudson, who are taking her back to Roslindale, near Boston.

ONE AERONAUT DEAD; ANOTHER IS BADLY HURT

PORTLAND, Me., July 6.—One aeronaut is dead and another is badly injured as a result of balloon accidents here.

Mistaking the promiscuous firing of revolvers by the crowd below as a signal for the climax of his aerial act, James Corcoran, an aeronaut, twenty-eight years old, of Lowell, Mass., cut loose with his parachute when but a few hundred feet from the earth and was dashed to the ground meeting almost instant death at the feet of 5,000 horrified spectators.

Corcoran had barely left the ground before promiscuous firing of revolvers began, but Professor Laroux called out to him to keep on. When Corcoran heard a second fusillade it is believed he was certain the signal had come for him to cut away in the parachute, for he was seen to drop from the balloon, although he was hardly 500 feet in the air.

The distance was too short for the parachute to open and he dropped in a straight line and struck on the site of the proposed monument to Thomas B. Reed, about 1,000 feet from where the ascension was made.

He was alive when his body was picked up, but died a few minutes later.

Undaunted by Corcoran's death, professor Laroux made an attempt to perform a triple parachute jump early in the evening, but the parachute got away from him and he fell twenty feet. One arm was broken and he received other injuries, not apparently of a serious nature. He made the attempt from the eastern promenade, from the place where his assistant met his death only a few hours before.

BOY ON FIRE; CALL ENGINE

David Seligman, a five-year-old boy of No. 27 Compton street, had a fire engine out to-day to put out a fire which had started to burn the clothes off his little body. By the time the firemen arrived Mrs. Rebecca Seligman, the boy's mother, had extinguished the flames on her son by rolling him in a doormat. David is at the City Hospital, and although suffering from burns about the legs and abdomen is not in a serious condition.

The boy had collected some papers and made a small fire in the gutter. The wind blew the blazing paper against him and his clothes took fire. David ran to the house and met his mother coming out. She acted quickly and wrapped the lad in a doormat. Patrolman Tagney, who ran up the street to see why the alarm from Box 66 was pulled, called an ambulance and took the boy to the hospital.

GIRL AND MAN HURT IN DORCHESTER FIRE

Miss Annie Chamberlain was severely burned and John Tobin received a broken shoulder during a fire at No. 40 Edison green, Dorchester. Miss Chamberlain, who lives with her sister, Mrs. S. E. Fish, smelled smoke and went to the attic to investigate. Mr. Fish followed her a few minutes later and met her coming down stairs beating out a fire which had caught her dress. Tobin, who lives on the lower floor, started up the rear stairs to investigate, was overcome by smoke and fell, breaking a shoulder.

His brother was notified and identified the body.

VANDALS CHIP CROSS AFTER ITS UNVEILING

Officers of the South Boston stations are to-day hunting for the vandals who twenty minutes after the exquisite replica of the Mulredach cross of Monasterboice was unvelled at the field day of the Knights of St. Brendan at Bay View Athletic Park stole up in the rear of the piece of statuary and damaged it with cobblestones.

The field day was attended by several thousands, it being one of the most successful affairs of its character ever held under the auspices of the organization. President McGillicuddy presided at the exercises held in conjunction with the unveiling. Those who spoke were Matthew Cummings, president of the Ancient Order of Hibernians; Jeremiah Carroll, the first president of the society; P. J. O'Daley of the Gaelic school, the oldest member of the organization; the Rev. Michael Mahan of Cambridge, Councillor E. P. Barry, Daniel J. Sullivan, the Rev. James Maguire, S. J., and the Rev. Thomas I. Gasson, S. J., president of Boston College.

With the band playing a popular Irish strain, Miss Ilene O'Connor and Master Thomas O'Leary pulled a cord that unveiled the replica. The cross was accepted by Father Gasson, who delivered a scholarly address on Celtic art.

"May this beautiful replica serve not only to rekindle a true appreciation of Irish art," said Father Gasson, "but may it also serve as an angel guide of men, teaching them by its hallowed memories and associations the uplifting power of the Cross of Christ."

TRAIN CRASH IN TERMINAL

Several persons were thrown from their seats in a train accident at the South station early to-day, and Benjamin Earl of Oak street, Hyde Park, was injured in the face. He was sent to his home.

Seven cars, mostly Pullmans, on the 8:30 train for Worcester, Springfield and New York were standing on Track 3, with a dead car at the end, when an engine and two mail cars backed in at good speed and struck the train.

The impact sent the heavy cars into the dead car, which was run up on to the bumper, thrown off the rails and its end stove in. Passengers in the rear car got the worst of the shock.

SIX DEAD IN FIRE.

RICHMOND, July 6.—H. F. Strange, aged seventy-four, a Confederate veteran, and five children of S. E. Hamlet, were burned to death in the Hamlet home at South Boston, Va. Hamlet, his wife, and two children escaped. One child was thrown from a window and so badly hurt that he will die.

SHUBERTS NAME NEW THEATRE FOR MME. NAZIMOVA

Mme. Nazimova. Photo by Sarony.

Work has been started on a new theatre in New York, which is to be a monument to the art of Mme. Nazimova. It is located on Thirty-ninth street, just off Broadway, and will be known as the Nazimova Art Theatre. It will be under the direction of the Shuberts, making the sixteenth theatre in New York under their management.

Some objection has been found to the selection of the name given the new playhouse, on account of the difficulty people have in pronouncing Nazimova. The famous Russian actress, however, insists that her name be used.

As for the pronunciation, when the actress first attracted the attention of Broadway she was spoken of as "Naz-i-MOVA." Her own people down on the East Side, where she acted first in Yiddish plays before taking up the study of English, called her "Na-ZIM-o-va," and as that is what madame calls it herself, there oughtn't to be very much trouble about it. Incidentally, the Russian pronunciation is much more musical than the Broadway version.

Mme. Nazimova is perhaps the most remarkable woman on the American stage by reason of the fact that she learned the English language in six months and at the end of that time was able to give a performance in English of "Hedda Gabler." She begins her season in October and will open at the new playhouse in January.

EAST BOSTON AS IMMIGRANT STATION SITE

Congressman John A. Keliher had a talk with Immigration Commissioner George B. Billings to-day about the site for the new immigration station, for which Congress has appropriated $250,000. Later he said:

"East Boston is undoubtedly going to be the maritime district of this city, and while nothing has been definitely decided upon, if a suitable site can be found there, I favor it as the location for the station. I am opposed to taking Governor's Island for the site. The cost of a ferry system between the island and the mainland, of dredging channels, building wharves and laying telephone and electric cables would leave nothing with which to build the station itself.

"Further, before Governor's Island could be used as the site the War Department would have to rescind its order giving Boston the right to use the island for recreation grounds. I would strenuously oppose that. Boston has too few such places now. People here will come to appreciate more and more the value of the island to them for recreation grounds."

A CLOSE SHAVE

Many of Them Happening Every Day but Soon Forgotten.

Close shaves would be of more frequent occurrence but for the tender faces of many men, which will not permit of shaving often. Heretofore, nothing has been said in these columns about poslam, a new skin discovery, in connection with its use after shaving. Its publicity and sales have been confined almost exclusively to its remarkable properties as an eczema cure; it stops the itching at once and cures the worst cases in a few days. While the application of poslam after shaving is one of its minor uses, such as for pimples, the complexion, etc., shavers will find it a revelation, as it does for abrasions, roughness, and severe scrapings what it does for all manner of skin difficulties—heals and cures in a few hours. It is the only article possessing real antiseptic and curative value that has ever been exploited for this purpose, and will soothe and tone up the skin as no toilet preparation could possibly do.

Poslam can be had for fifty cents at any reliable druggists, particularly all Riker-Jaynes drug stores and Houghton & Dutton's drug dept., who make a specialty of it. Or the Emergency Laboratories, No. 32 West 25th Street, New York City, will send a trial supply free by mail to any one who will write for it. This is sufficient to show results in 24 hours.

THE CASH INTRIGUE

How "Breed" Bought Up All the Railroads

George Randolph Chester

in a truly great short story, tells how this powerful man—who might be Rockefeller, Morgan, Hill, or a score of others—acquired all the railroads, and what he did with them.

It's a startling theme for a short story, and handled with all the vigor and tense plot interest which characterized the "Get-Rich Wallingford" series. Reinforced by nineteen other noteworthy features—each one too interesting to be skipped—it makes COSMOPOLITAN the dominating magazine of the month.

DIRECTOIRE BATHING GIRLS

PARIS, July 6.—Smart Frenchwomen will adopt the Directoire style in their bathing dresses at the coming seaside season, so as to preserve the slender, elongated shape that this style of gown gives them ashore.

They will wear corsets made of stiff cloth with flexible quill ribs instead of whalebones, the corsets being kept in place by suspenders over the shoulder. A tight fitting culotte is an indespensable feature of the costume, a close cut princess gown covering all.

The outfit is completed by stockings and high laced shoes matching the color of the dress.

SALEM, July 6.—Sophie Koziesska, the two-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Koziesska of No. 68 Derby street, was instantly killed in front of her home by an electric car. Eyewitnesses say that the child ran out of her yard and that the mother, in attempting to catch her, pushed the little one against the running board of the car, which was bound from Town House square to Salem Willows. The baby was struck in the temple and was lifeless when picked up.

SAFE ROBBED OF $100.

GLOUCESTER, July 6.—Peter Frazier, twenty-seven years old, was arrested, charged with opening the safe of Howard Harding while Harding was absent and taking $100. NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y., July 6.—Elsie Janis, the actress, wearing a poke bonnet and goggles and a long duster over her costume, was arrested on Pelham road for driving her motor car at the rate of twenty-five miles an hour. When arraigned before Judge Schlessinger at his home she gave her real name, Elsie Bierbauer. She paid a fine of $10. She said that she had just bought the motor car and was learning to run it. She was on her way to Newport.

SANER 4TH LAWS REDUCE DEATH ROLL

CHICAGO, July 6.—More rigid laws and growth of sentiment for a sane celebration of the Fourth have had their result all over the country in reducing the number of killed and wounded in the annual holiday. Full returns of the two-day celebration this year show a falling off of twelve in the number of killed from the record of 1908. There were forty-four fatalities reported up to this morning, against fifty-six last year. The number of injured totals 2,361, against 1,899 last year.

Mr. Curtiss is the first to comply with the conditions.

Three men went after him, but were unable to find the body, and were themselves rescued with difficulty.

SLOOP UPSET; 9 NEAR DEATH

Nine persons, who had been thrown into the waters of the lower harbor, by the capsizing of the sloop Lillian, were rescued with difficulty. The rescue was made by the crew of an unknown boat and by a party who were sailing with Dr. Ralph W. Place of Cambridge.

The Lillian, which is a 30-foot sloop, was struck by a squall while off Long Island head. The Lillian is owned by Captain Thomas Garde, who was at the tiller. The others in the party were Mrs. Garde, Miss Clarissa Humphrey, a niece of Captain Garde; Mr. and Mrs. John Muir and their two children, of Somerville, George R. Gardner of No. 728 Washington street, Roxbury, and Captain Harry N. Dawley of No. 2 Maywood terrace, Roxbury.

Fortunately the mainsail lay flat on the water, and on this Mr. Muir set the two children. He then placed Mrs. Muir on the side of the boat. Meanwhile Captain Dawley brought up Miss Humphrey as she was sinking the second time. Mrs. Garde was rescued less easily.

While the children rested on the sail and the women sat on the side of the boat the four male members of the party clung to the side of the sloop. They were quickly sighted by the power boats.

AUTO WRECKED TO SAVE WOMEN

To save the lives of three women who were in the path of the swiftly moving vehicle, Andrew Atkinson of No. 82 Berkeley street, sharply swerved a big touring automobile, which was specially chartered by the Boston Protective Department, and upset the car, at Hogg's bridge, Roxbury. All five occupants of the car were thrown out, and two of them were painfully hurt.

The party in the car were answering a still alarm of fire from West Roxbury and the machine was running at nearly top speed. The women, who were in the street, became confused and stepped directly in front of the car. Atkinson, who was driving, swung the car sharply, but it skidded and struck a trolley pole and capsized.

BOY DRAGGED TO DEATH BY BIG FISH

NEWPORT, Vt., July 6.—The body of Frederick Gocheu, nine years old, who disappeared from home on Thursday, was found near the C. P. R. section house floating on the water.

Parties had been dragging the lake all day, and as a last resort dynamite was used, but with no effect.

A fish pole and tackle with a bass weighing two and a half pounds was found in the boy's grasp, and it is thought that the fish pulled him off from a spile, which was the favorite fishing point of the boy.

FOUGHT WITH GIRL, JUMPED INTO HARBOR

Following a tiff with his companion, Miss Annie Parsons, on the Boston, Revere Beach & Lynn ferryboat Brewster, Arthur Donohue, twenty-eight, of No. 21 Pleasant street, jumped overboard when the boat was about half way across the harbor. Members of the crew promptly leaped after him and hauled him back on deck. Though he was not much the worse for his venture, Donohue was taken to the Relief Hospital.

SKELLIG MOHR BACK ON THE JOB

Skellig Mohr, the famous Kerry goat, which was given by Roger Scannell in behalf of the Kerry Men's Club to the battleship Vermont, March 17 last, was back with the old crowd at Rugby Park, the occasion being the first annual outing and field day of the O'Connell Literary and Athletic Association, which hopes to become the sturdy oak from the acorn of the Kerry Men's Club.

3 TIMES AROUND GLOBE IN 3 YEARS

Having traveled 126,000 miles during the last three years, and having encircled the world three times, Daniel Smith of Christchurch, N. Z., a passenger on the Allan liner Laurentian, holds the record for globe trotting at this port. He is accompanied by his son, Fred W. Smith. Both are well-known business men in New Zealand and are now on their way home.

BIG SNUFF SALES TO NEW ENGLAND GIRLS

WASHINGTON, July 6.—The debate in the Senate on the tobacco schedule has brought out the fact that large quantities of snuff are used in New England.

In the mill towns of Massachusetts it is kept at the drug stores, groceries and notion stores, as well as at the tobacconists. It is sold in tin boxes for five or ten cents, and the girls from the factories are the purchasers.

PASTOR CALLED HERE.

NEWPORT, R. I., July 6.—Rev. James Austin Richards, minister of the United Congregational Church, has received a call from the Mount Vernon Congregational Church at Boston. It cannot be officially stated yet that Mr. Richards will accept.

JUST TRY AND PUZZLE IT OUT

As the result of two recent weddings in Cambridge, acquaintances of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick W. Murray of Ellery street and Mr. and Mrs. William F. Hurter of No. 25 Highland avenue have been occupied with a most tangled puzzle.

On April 14 Frederick W. Murray, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Murray, took as his bride Miss Annie Bell Hurter, Radcliffe '08, daughter of William F. Hurter. On June 30 Miss Edith Maud Murray became the wife of William F. Hurter. Mr. Hurter is sixty-one years old and his bride is thirty.

The enigma which puzzles the friends of the two couples is whether Mr. Hurter should rightfully look upon his daughter as such or as his sister-in-law, in that she is the wife of his wife's brother. Again, should he consider that he should look after the guidance of Mr. Murray, as he would a son-in-law, or simply consider him a brother-in-law, in that he (Mr. Hurter) is married to the sister of the young man. It is also asked as to whether, if Mr. and Mrs. Murray have a child, it should rightfully be considered a grandchild or nephew or niece of Mr. Hurter. On the other hand, if a child were to bless the union of Mr. and Mrs. Hurter, would such child be the step-sister or brother of Mrs. Murray, or her step-niece.

It is understood that the two couples have simply agreed to let the question of relationship take care of itself, and to "live happy ever after."

EVA TANGUAY FILLS A ROLE IN COURT

NEW YORK, July 6.—Eva Tanguay, the "Sambo Girl," had to get up earlier than usual to fill an engagement in the Rockaway Police Court. At Morrison's Theatre, Rockaway Beach, James McVey, a plain clothes policeman, decided she had violated that section of the Penal Code requiring artists to appear in Sunday concerts only in clothes that can be worn in the streets.

The audience learned that Miss Tanguay "Does Care," and that "Nothing Bothers Me" doesn't always go with the tempestuous little comedienne. When the detective rapped on her dressing room door and told her she was under arrest she declined so emphatically the whole audience heard her.

ELIJAH SAYS WORLD ENDS ON SEPT. 15

BANGOR, Me., July 6.—The Holy Ghost and Us Society, whose principal base of operations is at Shiloh, has received advices that the end of the world is to come at 10:20:30 a. m., Wednesday, September 15. The Rev. Frank Sandford, who originated the sect and calls himself "Elijah," "The Uncrowned King" and several other euphonious titles, writes so from Cape Town.

LET FLY BITE HIM, NOW MAY LOSE ARM

TRENTON, N. J., July 6.—Because he neglected to brush off a biting fly when he was shooting for a bull's-eye to give his team a perfect score on the rifle range, Sergeant Clinton B. Higgins of Trenton Battalion of the National Guard may lose an arm.

Blood-poisoning has developed from the bite.

WORLD'S BIGGEST FLAG AT PITTSBURG

PITTSBURG, July 6.—One hundred and eighty feet long and ninety feet wide, what is claimed to be the largest flag in the world, floats between the courthouse tower and the Frick Building.

It reaches within two stories of the ground, and it took two months for the Betsy Ross Association to make it, 100 women working.

WOMAN RUN DOWN BY AUTO

While crossing Columbia road at Quincy street, Dorchester, James Hickey of No. 78 Woodcliff street and Miss Margery A. Barry of No. 47 Dacia street were knocked down by an automobile owned and operated by William R. Nagle of No. 235 Park street, Dorchester. They were taken to the City Hospital.

HOW TO TREAT YOUR RHEUMATISM AT HOME

The latest scientific works state that the ordinary medical treatments of rheumatism are still far from satisfactory. For this reason sufferers from rheumatism will be interested in the success which Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have had in curing this painful disease.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have cured hundreds of cases, and are the most direct treatment of rheumatism, because they drive its poisons out of the blood. That rheumatism is a disease of the blood is shown by the fact that it is hereditary in certain families, and that there is a marked thinning of the blood immediately following its attack.

Mrs. Frank E. Upton, of No. 46 Union street, Attleboro, Mass., treated her rheumatism through the blood with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and a cure resulted. She says:

"After an attack of the grip, I was left with muscular rheumatism. The muscles in my limbs were affected. For six weeks I couldn't walk at all. I suffered terribly when on my feet. My stomach was out of order. I could eat nothing but crackers and tea and even this diet hurt me. There was an awful pain in my stomach and there seemed to be a weight on it.

"At first the doctor helped me but after a time I grew worse again. He said nothing would do me much good but, I would feel better when summer came. I was discouraged and, when a friend told me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, I began using them. I began to notice an improvement while taking the first few boxes. The benefit continued until I was cured. I have no rheumatism now and can stand on my feet all day. My appetite is good and my stomach does not distress me. I can recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to any sufferer with rheumatism."

If you have failed to find more than temporary relief from your suffering, the treatment is most likely not a blood-builder and you are, therefore, not treating the cause of your trouble. You should not neglect to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Our booklet, "Diseases of the Blood," will be sent free to any sufferer upon request.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists, or sent by mail, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box; six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

'LEPER' EARLY FREE IN CITY

NEW YORK, July 6.—The most eminent physicians in New York city to-day begin treating John R. Early, who, Washington physicians say, has leprosy. The medical men here who are interested in the case declare that Early is not a leper.

The alleged leper jostled against thousands of Manhattanites as he wedged his way through the Fourth of July crowds on his way to the Skin and Cancer Hospital, on Second avenue. There he will remain as a patient about one week.

In the hospital Early moved about almost as freely as he did in the streets. He was placed in a ward with seven other men, and when things got monotonous there he went up on the roof, where he came in contact with practically all the other patients. All had flocked to the roof because of curiosity to see the man whose disease had thrown the scientists of two continents into a seemingly hopeless tangle.

Early proposes to bring suit against the government for incarcerating him as a leper.

FIREBUG A SUICIDE.

COLORADO SPRINGS, July 6.—Lew H. Warriner, caretaker of the Stellar Observatory for Professor Frank H. Loud of Colorado College, committed suicide by shooting after first having soaked the floor of the observatory with coal oil and fired it in three places.

WOMAN KILLED WITH A CLUB

NEW YORK, July 6.—The body of an unidentified woman who had been beaten to death with a club was found to-day in the hallway of the five-story tenement at No. 436 East Thirteenth street. Three men are detained by the police, although it is not thought that any one participated in the murder.

The condition of the clothes indicates that a struggle took place before she was killed. The slayer escaped by the front door to East Thirteenth street, leaving a bloody trail, and was seen by several immediately after the crime.

The men in custody are Braglo Cali of No. 442 East Thirteenth street, the proprietor of a saloon in the same building, the side door of which opened on the hallway in which the body was found; his son Philipo, twenty-one years old, who admits that he was in the saloon and heard a struggle in the hallway, and Antonio de Lucca, the son of the owner of a fruit stand where the slayer is supposed to have washed his face and hands after the crime.

TRAIN KILLS ARCHITECT.

TWO FAMILIES FLEE FLAMES

Policeman Patrick Doolan of Somerville risked his own life to rescue the families of Frank Gorfine, Sidney E. Hayden and F. T. Hazleton in a fire at No. 511A Medford street, early to-day.

The fire started in the Gorfine apartments. The smoke awakened Mr. Gorfine, who ran out of the house. Patrolman Doolan was passing, and when he learned the cause of Gorfine's excitement, ran up to the door leading to the Hayden apartments and kicked it in.

He roused Mr. and Mrs. Hayden and Mr. Hazleton, who slept on that floor, and got them out of the house in their night clothes, and then learned that Mrs. Hazelton was asleep on the top floor.

He ran up there and awakened her, but she refused to come out without dressing, and Patrolman Doolan took her in his arms and carried her through the smoke to the street.

An alarm had been rung in from box 37, and the firemen confined the fire to the Gorfine rooms, where it did a damage estimated at $700. The building is owned by Mr. Hayden.

RED SOX LEAVE TO-NIGHT ON AN IMPORTANT TRIP TO NEW YORK AND WEST

The Red Sox leave to-night to be gone more than three weeks. It is an important trip for them.

On this trip the Red Legs will visit New York, on two occasions, Chicago, St. Louis, Cleveland, Detroit, and then after their second appearance at the Highlander's Park in New York, they will be back home receiving callers every afternoon except Sundays, until August 14.

Manager Lake's crew has a hard job on its hands when it starts the hike around the eastern and western end of the circuit and just where the team is going to finish in the final scramble depends a great deal on the showing the boys make on this trip. The Athletics have taken a good lead for second place and the Tigers are ranging still farther to the front, and it will take a bunch of winning contests to make things any where near even.

Seventeen games in all are scheduled for the Bostonians and it looks like they should be able to land at least more than half a dozen of these contests. That number with the long stay at home, which should be used to great advantage by Manager Lake, should put the Red Sox right there at the end.

Harry Lord will be back in the game this afternoon and will be Johnny-on-the-spot at third base, unless of course accidents happen, all the time the team is on the trip. Harry has had a swell time resting up for the coming trip with his folks up in Maine and his batting eye should be right on edge to greet the twirlers of the Tigers, White Sox, Naps and other teams.

And then beside Lord being back in the game, the team will be greatly strengthened for Doc Gessler will be on the job in the right meadow and with more popular than ever. Harry Hooper who has been filling the clean-up position since Gessler hurt his finger in Washington, has done mighty well but there is always more confidence with the boss in the game and playing good steady base ball.

Notes of the Red Sox Game

We love our Bill, but Oh! you Pat?

* * *

Wagner had a sure enough off-day in the morning game. Three errors was the total of Heinie's badness.

* * *

Harry Niles did a few more stunts at sprinting. He beat out two rollers to the pitcher's box in the morning game.

* * *

Gessler is also there with the Jimmie Reeter movement and stole the only base of the morning encounter.

* * *

Stahl was on hand with the long swat of the day. It was a triple this time and came in the opening game.

* * *

Unglaub hit in good form with a single and a double. These were made in the early contest.

* * *

Chech was ousted from the slab in the morning game and Schlitzer took up the duties, but he didn't last long, and Joe Wood finished the game.

* * *

Pat Donohue's homer was a peach and came with two men on. It tied the score.

* * *

Unglaub was removed from the afternoon game for kicking on a decision that McBride was out on a steal. Blankenship took his place in right field.

* * *

* * *

Slik O'Loughlin is still on the job, but Bull Perrine has moved on. Eagan has taken Bull's place.

* * *

Freddie Burchell was certainly pitching. He held the Washington team to three hits in the afternoon game. This is certainly a reversal of form, as Fred has not been able to stay in the box more than half a game so far this season.

* * *

Hughes was knocked from the slab in the third inning of the morning game, and Groome went to the slab. He had all the curves and did good work.

* * *

Joe Wood, who relieved Schlitzer in the morning game, had the Senators guessing all the time.

* * *

* * *

Harry Niles played centre field in place of Speaker, who is taking a rest. Niles was right there all the time, both at bat and in the field. Speaker took a turn as a pinch hitter, but failed to pinch.

* * *

The wonderful Walter Johnson got his in large gobs yesterday. He was found for twelve hits for a total of sixteen bases. This doesn't look like king-of-them-all pitching.

* * *

Delehanty, Lord and Wagner pulled off swell catches at various times in the two games.

* * *

FRANK SELEE DEAD IN WEST

DENVER, Col., July 6.—Frank G. Selee, for twelve years manager of the Boston National League Baseball Club, and once manager of the Chicago Nationals, is dead at the Elks' Home for Consumptives.

Frank G. Selee was born at Amherst, N. H., Oct. 16, 1859. His father was formerly a Methodist clergyman at Truro, from where he moved to Melrose some forty-one years ago.

Selee's first baseball experience was as a player with the Alphas of Melrose, his position being in the outfield. He was a good player. He afterwards played with the Walthams, this leading to his managing this club in the Massachusetts State League in 1884.

In the Fall of 1884 four of the players and the manager were transferred to Lawrence, the interest in Waltham not being sufficient to support that club.

In 1885 Mr. Selee started in at Lawrence in conjunction with W. W. Burnham, and in the Fall of the year was engaged by the Haverhill Club as manager, to succeed G. W. Brackett. His administration there was a success. In the following year he remained in Haverhill, his club coming in second to Portland.

In 1887 Mr. Selee was secured to take charge of the Oshkosh Club, which finished first after one of the greatest struggles ever known in the history of the game in that region.

In 1888 and 1889 Mr. Selee was the manager of the Omaha Club, one of the most solid in the West.

The last year in Omaha Selee brought out Charley Nichols, who remained with Selee for twelve years in Boston, and quit the East with his old manager.

From 1890 to 1901 inclusive, Mr. Selee managed the Boston Club, and he saw his team win the championship in '91, '92, '93, '97, '98. He divided honors with Ed Hanlon as a successful baseball manager.

In the Fall of 1901 he was engaged by the Chicago League Club to manage, and was re-engaged for 1902.

Mr. Selee brought out such players as Collins, Stahl, Willis, Moran, Pittinger, Klobedanz, Tenney, Carney, Bergen, Lowe and several other good ones while with the Boston Club.

HOODOO PURSUES SCHAEFER

A man playing poker will sit in one position in his chair as long as he is winning. When he begins losing he will change that position and will also, if possible, change chairs.

Herman Schaefer is a right-handed hitter. He has always batted right-handed against Addie Joss. But he has never hit Joss that he can remember of. So, like the man playing poker, Schaefer changed his position yesterday and batted left-handed, intending to kill the hoodoo that Addie had over him.

He flied out and he fouled out, and twice he grounded out. Even the line Herman drew alongside the plate failed to break the power of Joss' curves.

LADY JONES IN FORM.

J. D. Callery of Pittsburg has not sent Lady Jones, 2:07¼, to Tommy Murphy yet, but will keep her home for two or three more matinees before shipping her. She raced to wagon over the Brunots Island track lately and was second to Uncle William, in 2:10¾. It is the intention to ship her to Murphy on July 12.

HOLDS WORLD'S RECORD.

Belle Acton, 2:14¼, who still holds the world's record for yearling pacing fillies, of 2:20¾, made in 1892, produced her first foal this Spring.

TURNS TROTTER TO PACING.

Charley De Ryder is training Adam G., 2:11¼, at the pace and thinks he will have a 2:05 horse when he gets him balanced.

OLDEST MARE KNOWN.

L. H. Fenn of Stockbridge owns a mare which he claims is forty-eight years old, and has pretty good proof that she was foaled in 1861. That's going some, but Walter Cox has a mule now working daily on his track at Dover, N. H., which he declares is about the same age and only last season won a trottin, race. Cox knows that the mule worked for thirty-two years in a brick yard before he bought him.

HAPPY EQUINE LIFE.

Gold Standard, 2:11¾, the grand old trotting gelding that has been raced successfully by George Castle so many years, recently closed his career by winning his seventy-fifth race at Albert Lea, Minn. It was his owner's ambition to put just that number of races to Gold Standard's credit and then retire him. During his remaining days Gold Standard will be provided with all the luxuries that equine life may enjoy.

FAST MILES BY BOSTON HORSES AT LEXINGTON

Billy O'Neil and Jimmy Timothy are each working about a dozen horses at the Lexington half-mile track, and all are in the acme of condition. O'Neil has been miles in 2:20 with two, Belle Archer 2:22¼, that he starts at Athol this week and with Billy Patten 2:18¼. Others with records he has beaten 2:25 with are Wataga 2:21½, the trotting mare by Bingen 2:06¼, out of Mrs. Jack 2:24¾, dam of King Peter 2:20¾, and the pacing gelding Charley King 2:21½. Frank Robbins, proprietor of the Quincy House in Boston, has his trotter Kildar 2:23¼ in the O'Neil string, and several times a week he goes out and gives him his work. For what has been asked of him he is showing finely.

George Norton, of Cambridge, has three in the stable. The gray filly by The Shah 2:10¾, out of Flyaway 2:29¾, O'Neil has put to pacing, and she behaves first-rate at her new mode of stepping. He has a two-year-old colt by Alliewood 2:09½, out of the same mare as the filly named, that should be counted on later.

Timothy has a four-year-old by Allie-wood, out of the dam of Uhlan 2:07¼, which he has found the right key in getting to trot straight. When he went to the track Timothy found he had the bad habit of carrying his head around toward the outside of the course, bearing in all the time to the pole. He has about gotten him over the fault and recently reeled off an easy mile, going clear in the middle of the track, in 2:21¼, the final half in 1:11. John Blanchard, of Concord, N. H., is the owner.

Dr. Frank Alderman is having developed a two-year-old own brother of Codero 2:09¾. He comes nearer to resembling Codero than any of the tribe. O'Neil says he has plenty of speed for the little work he has received.

WHAT KIND OF FAN IS HE?

One St. Louis paper believes in sticking up for St. Louis even if the two ball teams representing that city do hover close to the cellar. A fan wrote to the Star and asked, "Why don't you show up the Browns and Cardinals?" Of the letter writer the paper has the following to say:

Do you know who this man is?

He is the vampire of poverty, the Attila of Industry; the avatar of greed; the scourge of the booster; the grafter who carries a gun; the man who is loud on "tongue."

If the bones of all the women and children he has starved to death; those of all the workmen he has slain to increase his heaps of gold were gathered together, a triumphal arch could be built therewith, through which knockers could ride.

Sure! He's the man who always roots against the home team. He sold rifles to the Filipinos in our war with the Islanders. He's the man who always hopes the English aspirant will lick our pugilistic champs.

Aside from that it is presumed that the St. Louis fan is all right.

M'GRAW A GAMBLER.

But for McGraw's contention that a ball club must frequently take a gambler's chance to win the Giants would have lost a game to Boston.

There were runners on first and second with one out. O'Hara, the fastest of the base runners, was on second. New York needed one run to tie the score, and it was the eighth inning. If the runners remained where they were a hit was absolutely necessary to save the game.

"Well, here's the chance to gamble," said McGraw to himself, and he gave O'Hara the signal to steal third. It was such a daring move and so unexpected that the Boston team gasped. Catcher Graham completely lost his composure and made a wild throw to third, which allowed the fleet-footed O'Hara to score. That one play sent the Boston team completely in the air, and after that runs came over in pairs.

If O'Hara had been thrown out at third base the Giants would have lost the game. The chances against McGraw were about three to one, but he took the long shot and won.

You've got to gamble with fate to win ball games. A large per cent. of the game is luck.

YANKEES WIN OVER BRITONS IN POLO GAME

LONDON, July 6.—The Meadowbrook, Long Island, polo team, composed of Laurence Waterbury, J. M. Waterbury, Jr., H. P. Whitney and Devereux Milburn, won the second match played here for the American polo cup 8 to 2.

The first game was won by the Americans June 23, and as the cup was to go to the side winning two out of three matches, the visitors, by their victory have secured the trophy for America.

After the match the Meadowbrook players all were presented to the Prince and Princess of Wales. The latter presented the cup and congratulated the Americans upon their brilliant play. The Duke and Duchess of Connaught also witnessed the game.

NO DEAD ONES FOR REDS.

Nothing that drops from the Boston National table will be snapped up by the Reds.

Manager Griffith has had one experience with a Dove discard and cares not to go after any more.

It will be recalled that the Reds forked over $1,500 for Bill Chappelle, principally because the big fellow seemed to have staying qualities and nerve. But after Grif got hold of him and looked over his repertoire, he found that he copped out a "ten-twent-thirt" twirler instead of a baseball Otis Skinner or John Drew.

DOING WELL ON SPEEDWAY.

Fashion, 2:15, bred by W. H. H. Moody, at his Highland View Farm, Claremont, N. H., is now owned by Fred Dietz, one of the well-known road drivers of New York City, and is making good on the New York Speedway. Walter Farmer once raced him at Readville and Charles River Speedway.

BOXING BITS OF NEWS

Johnny Frayne and Ketchel are working together, and have become great pals. Corbett has been introduced several times since he landed in 'Frisco, and is the same popular kid with the fans. They like a thoroughbred out there, and Corbett sure showed some speed on the coast when the money was coming in fast.

* * *

Young Corbett and Johnny Frayne are to meet on July 17 at 135 pounds, weigh in five hours before the mill. Each man has posted $500 weight forfeit. Heine Rafael was offered a $1,000 guarantee for Frayne's end, but refused it. He will gamble on a percentage. The fighters will get 50 per cent. of the gross receipts, which will be divided 60 and 40.

* * *

Jack Blackburn will begin his fifteen-year engagement with the Pennsylvania booby hatch this week. Jack will likely be put in charge of athletics. Road work will be one of Jack's chief stunts, also breaking big ones into little ones.

KETCHEL WINS OVER BILL PAPKE IN 20 ROUNDS

By W. W. NAUGHTON.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 6.—Ketchel, the assassin, saved his middleweight laurels from Billy Papke, and that was about all. The contest of yesterday lasted the full twenty rounds, and the decision went to Ketchel, who earned it fairly enough.

Instead, however, of being a "one-punch" contest, it will be remembered as the battle of one thousand and one punches. As a reason for Ketchel's inability to encompass a knockout, it was given out by Manager Willus Britt that the Michigan man had broken his right hand in the seventh round and from that point on his left had to do double duty.

That Ketchel injured his right hand can scarcely be doubted, but in the excitement which prevailed in his corner during the fight that was notable for speed and fierceness, his second must have become confused as to the round in which Ketchel met with the mishap. He scored the only clean knock-down of the contest with his trusty right in the tenth round, and he could not very well have accomplished anything of that kind if his right arm had been broken.

Papke Just Held On.

As the men went the full distance prescribed by the articles there was some dissatisfaction at the verdict, as there is in such cases, but it was Ketchel's victory all right.

In addition to putting Papke to the floor in the tenth round in the manner prescribed, Ketchel did practically all the fighting in the concluding rounds. He asked no quarter and gave none, but swung and hooked as effectively as his depleted strength would permit and all this time Papke, who was not clear-eyed, but far from being as jaded as his opponent, just held on.

Of the two men, Papke was undeniably the sturdier, but he is not as willing to fight as the other boy. Had Ketchel's fighting spirit been transferred to Papke's brain and body in the last two rounds the winner's name might have been spelled differently.

Papke's Best Punch.

From the way the thing opened up it looked as if Papke would get inside of Ketchel's hits and swing and topple the assassin with lifting punches before the contest had waged very long. As the fight wore on it appeared to the writer that Papke's early round rushes did not so much denote a desire to fall to as a purpose of bumping in close enough to clinch, though of course, points of this kind may be argued from different ways.

It developed that Papke's best punch was a right uppercut, delivered while breaking, and he can claim, of course, if he wishes, that it was to his advantage to bring about clinches in order better to get in his uppercut when partly from his man.

On the other hand Papke did not use this upercut persistently. In many of the latter rounds he stooped and covered, ignoring clinch chances for uppercuts and everything else. Some of us thought then that he was planning to have Ketchel fight himself out.

One or two sharp rallies that the Kewanee boy instigated when he suddenly stood erect favored this view, but no matter what subterfuge Papke was credited with, his subsequent tactics did not bear out the opinion formed.

Mysterious Tactics.

In the last rounds of all—the nineteenth, particularly—Papke took to holding Ketchel's head under his arm. He had the assassin in a fine position for the strangle hold if it had been a wrestling match, and here again some of the spectators took another flyer as to what was passing in the Papke mind.

"He's saving his strength for a whirlwind finish," said more than one within the writer's hearing, and when one noticed Ketchel's plight it appeared as though there was logic in the supposition.

Ketchel was certainly painfully slow in the delivery of his blows toward the end, but Papke's whirlwind finish did not materialize.

When the Kewanee man held, held and held in the last three minutes of fighting the only conclusion to be arrived at then was that he was determined to hammer Ketchel in the hope that the referee would pronounce the contest a draw.

The writer kept close tabs on the work done, and credited Ketchel with eight rounds of the twenty fought. Papke had a decided lead in two rounds, the sixth and eighteenth, and the others were even. After the twelfth round, when Ketchel's right hand work was not much in evidence there were five rounds in succession in which there were nothing to choose between the men. Papke spurted and led in the eighteenth round, began holding in the nineteenth and in the twentieth round as already prescribed, and permitted Ketchel to do most of the punching.

Bitter From Start.

"It was bitter from the start, and although Papke was the first to rush in the early rounds, Ketchel as a rule was at all times the more aggressive of the pair. The champion got into play every punch and shift he is master of, but whether it is that Papke is more durable than the majority of men Ketchel has had to do with, or that the assassin was not at his fiercest, the Michigan man's best ones were powerless to send Papke to the floor until the tenth round was reached.

The pace told on Ketchel early. He established a lead in the opening rounds, but he was tired by the time the third round was finished, and between rounds Papke peered over from his corner with a grin on his face and seemed to be studying Ketchel's condition closely.

When the fifth round ended there wasn't much to choose between the two men, and in the sixth there were slugging matches aplenty interspersed with clinches.

Poor Roche, the referee, earned his fee that time if he never earned it before, for while straining to part the men from their clinches the veins and cords stood out on his neck. Papke's nose was bleeding in this round, and soon afterwards there was a big bruise beneath Ketchel's left arm, attributed to the force and sureness of Papke's lifting punches. On the whole Ketchel took more than he gave in that line.

Ketchel had hard work to free himself from Billy's embrace, but whenever he could pull away, with the referee's assistance he would return to the charge and

First Round.

Ketchel opened up with a right smash to the stomach and after some wrestling he duplicated the blow. Breaking from a clinch Ketchel uppercut his left to the jaw. The referee experienced great difficulty in separating the men from clinches. Ketchel suddenly unhooked a succession of right and left swings on the body and head and the Thunderbolt sought refuge in a clinch. Ketchel had the advantage of the first round.

Second Round.

The men fought entirely within close range with Ketchel forcing his man to close. Locked in a clinch against the ropes Ketchel shot a fearful left uppercut to the jaw and a moment later slipped in a similar blow to the stomach. Papke retaliated by landing a vicious left to the champion's jaw. Both men looked very determined and there was venom behind each punch. The round ended with the men fighting at close range. Ketchel had the advantage.

Third Round.

Ketchel rushed his man against the ropes time and time again. From this position Papke delivered two right body punches and the men fought to the centre of the ring. Papke landed a wicked left to the jaw and soon afterwards swung to stomach. Ketchel landed a straight left on the nose. The men fought head to head at close quarters. Both missed terrific swings. Papke shot a straight right to the mouth and the blood seethed through Ketchel's lips as he took his seat. It was Papke's round.

Fourth Round.

Ketchel opened the fourth round with a fearful left swing to the jaw. He went after his man like an enraged tiger landing right and left swings to the jaw and body. Ketchel planted a straight right over the heart but Papke only smiled. The men were loth to break from clinches during which Ketchel swung rather low twice with short arm rights. Ketchel had a shade in his round.

Fifth Round.

Papke led with left but was stopped by Ketchel's straight left on the face. Each man landed a right on the body and clinched, them separated. Papke forced his man across the ring putting a right hard on the body. They clinched. Ketchel scored a right to the body while holding and when Roche parted them Ketchel swung three lefts on the stomach sending Papke to the ropes. Papke stopped a left to the stomach and they roughed it on the ropes Papke being forced out on the press benches. Ketchel missed with a right and they went into a corner each putting in fierce upper cuts. Papke grinned at Ketchel as the bell rang. The fight has an even look.

Sixth Round.

Papke tried with a right to the body. Ketchel blocked and clinched, the referee breaking them apart. Papke sent in left and right upper cuts to face. They clinched and fell to the floor together. Papke brought blood to Ketchel's face with terrific rights and Ketchel bruised Papke's face with a right. Ketchel seemed hurt by Papke's punches. He soon gathered himself together and forced Papke to the ropes, tearing away at the body with both hands. In breaking Papke got in a jolting right uppercut. Papke uppercut with several lefts and rights to the face and Ketchel's mouth was bleeding. They stood away for a few seconds and Ketchel forced Papke to a corner, getting in left body blows. Papke's round.

Seventh Round.

Eighth Round.

Both aimed at the body, Ketchel with left and Papke with right. Papke's blow was blocked. Papke got in a left jolt to the face and they clinched. Ketchel forced him to the ropes, hammering the body with left and right and mixing with blows at the head. Papke was forced half way through the ropes. Ketchel swung a left on the chin and Papke got him with a right on the body. They feinted and Papke swung a right on the ribs. Ketchel got in a left uppercut in a clinch and Papke scored with the same hand while breaking. They fought more slowly, each being affected by the pace.

Ninth Round.

Ketchel met Papke's right with a left on the temple and smothered Papke's body blows. When near the ropes Ketchel got in a hard left to the body. Papke did not have his head covered and Ketchel ripped in a left uppercut which made the Thunderbolt's head toss and brought blood in streams from the nose. Ketchel crowded Papke and they swung at each other freely. Ketchel cut the face and body with both hands while Papke put in left and rights on the head. Ketchel was now the aggressor, forcing Papke across the ring and smashing in hard blows on the body. Papke clinched and Ketchel gave him several dazing blows with the left as they clung together.

Tenth Round.

Papke rushed and landed with the left. They clinched. Papke backed away from Ketchel's body blows and took a swing at the head. It was a glancing blow. Ketchel crowded in shooting lefts and rights on the face. Ketchel worked his shifts, now using lefts and rights. He brought Papke down under the ropes with a hard right. Papke jumped up and scooted around the ring. He covered up at the ropes and Ketchel did not get through the guard. Ketchel tired himself and Papke mixed it up. Ketchel soon forced him to go on the defensive again. Papke was so covered that Ketchel could only reach him above the eyebrows but at that Ketchel got in many punches which made the Thunderbolt's head rock. Papke freshened up just at the gong and put in left and rights on the face.

Eleventh Round.

Papke darted at Ketchel, landing to the face. They clinched. When they broke Ketchel landed a left to the nose. Papke backed away, trying to cover up from Ketchel's rushes, when Papke shifted on the jaw. Ketchel forced him across the ring, putting in a hard left swing to the jaw and following with two right uppercuts. Papke covered up. Ketchel seemed to be tiring. He fell to his haunches without cause apparently. Ketchel ripped a hard right to the body and pinned Papke against the ropes. Papke sent home a right uppercut and Ketchel placed left and right on the jaw. Ketchel had Papke on the ropes at the bell.

Twelfth Round.

Ketchel landed hard right to the jaw and sent Papke back against the ropes, only the lower strand saving the Thunderbolt from falling into the press stand. After Ketchel had sent a hard right to the face Papke came back at him, landing vicious right and left swings to jaw, and Ketchel staggered a bit. Ketchel, however, was not to be stopped. He exchanged punches with his opponent, but received considerably the worst of the argument. Papke braced up considerably in this round and succeeded in making it an even three-minute session.

Thirteenth Round.

Papke landed full tilt with a vicious right swing to the point of the jaw, which nettled the champion and forced him to clinch. Papke was fighting strongly at this stage and appeared to be far from a beaten man. Ketchel landed his right to the jaw, for which he was rebuked with a right uppercut on the chin. Papke seemed to take on confidence as the battle progressed, and the round, if anything, was in Papke's favor.

Fourteenth Round.

The men swung at each other for a minute, but only one landed—a right to the body of Ketchel. The Thunderbolt followed this with a right to jaw and a left to the body. Ketchel then drove his right with great force on the body, and a clinch followed. The rest of the round was devoted to close range fighting, in which no damage was done. Papke had a slight advantage in this round.

Fifteenth Round.

Ketchel opened the round with a vicious left chop on the jaw. A moment later he sank his left into the stomach and then forced Papke against the ropes, but inflicted no damage. The men clinched, wrestled and stalled, and slowed up perceptibly. At close range Papke swung rights and lefts to the jaw, and then the bell ended a very tame round.

Sixteenth Round.

The fighters battled at a furious clip at close range. Again and again they swung with right and left, but without result. In one of the mixes Ketchel uppercut with left to the jaw, but Papke evened it up with right and left body punches, which he varied with a straight left to the face. The fighters were locked in each others' embrace as the gong closed the round.

Eighteenth Round.

Ketchel dodged away from a right and then went in with left to the stomach, but they clinched. Ketchel poked a stiff left on the face and they clinched again. Papke used left to the stomach and then backed Ketchel to the ropes with lefts and rights to the head. Ketchel put in left uppercut and Papke came back with left and right, both blows reaching the face. Papke's seconds shouted to him to go in. Papke had the better of it for a few seconds, getting to the face with left and rights. Ketchel stepped back and met Papke's rushes with hard lefts to the face. It was Papke's round.

Nineteenth Round.

Ketchel was there with a left uppercut as Papke came in. They clinched. Papke was the strongest, smothering Ketchel's body blows, and waiting to get in a right upper cut in the break. He missed when the time came, but a few seconds later he got Ketchel with a high left. Ketchel swung and Papke easily avoided it. There was a lot of clinching, in which Papke seemed to be nursing his strength. Papke reached Ketchel's jaw, sending his head back, and followed it with a left to the body. Ketchel slipped left to the body three times.

Twentieth Round.

Papke came in swinging, and they went into a clinch. Roche cautioned them, but they clinched again. Ketchel used left hooks to the face, and Papke swinging to the body. The referee was busier than either of the fighters. Ketchel got both hands free and hammered away. Papke swung a hard right on the jaw and followed with left. Ketchel pressed him to the ropes and sent left after left in the stomach with Papke holding on. He tried for a right uppercut on the break. Clinch again. Ketchel pinned him to the ropes with body left. Ketchel did nearly all the fighting. He mixed with left and right swings but forced Papke into a corner and smashed left body blows in as fast as he could work his arms. He was at it when the final gong sounded.

Then Referee Roche pulled them asunder and raised Ketchel's left arm aloft as a signal that the assassin had won.

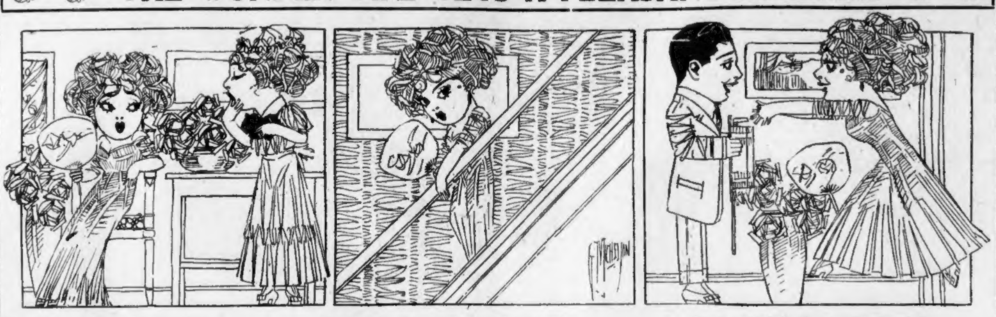
THE WONDER GIRL GETS A PLEASANT SURPRISE



The maid announces a caller who came,
Refusing to tell her his business or name.

The Wonder Girl, slowly descending the stairs,
Expects Lord Fitz Dubbe, and says feminine swears;

But lo, and behold, it's none other than Jack,
Who took the next ship on the Wonder Girl's track.

A Word of Cheer for the "Plain Girl"

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

I WONDER how many girls have fretted their hearts out because beauty has been denied them.

If you are plain the quickest way to make yourself plainer is by fretting and discontent.

Of course it is nice to be pretty—no one can deny that—but if you are not, the best thing to do is to make the best of such good looks as you have.

Be a wise girl and say to yourself: "I am not pretty, now what can I do to make people forget my lack of beauty? What are my best qualities, and what can I do to make myself loved?"

In the first place, try to be sunny-tempered; a frown on a plain face is a distressing sight. Think of others and their likes and dislikes; make yourself a comfort to whomsoever you come in contact with. Never get sour; people do so hate a sour person.

A Plain Girl Who Was Liked

I remember overhearing an old woman in the country discussing a number of children who lived at her farm during the Summer. "It's a pity," said her daughter, "that Mollie is so plain."

"Oh, I don't know," said the old woman, "she is plain, but she's so comforting that I like her best of all the children. If she were pretty she might be spoiled and not nearly so sweet."

So perhaps you can be "comforting," and believe me, you will make many friends if you are.

I do not say that all pretty girls are spoiled, for I have known many girls who were as lovely in disposition as in face; but I do say that the plain girls need not despair nor fret because of their plainness. Some foolish people will tell you that men only care for beauty and that the pretty girls get all the attention.

That's not so, my dears, for the man who is worth looking at twice demands something better than mere good looks in the girl he loves.

The pretty girls have a slight start, because men seeing their good looks are attracted and ask to meet them, but a man very quickly finds out a girl's true worth, and nowadays a pretty face and empty head are not enough.

Makes People Like You

Listen to what people have to say; don't try to make them listen to you, and never answer at random. You must look interested while they talk, even if they are discussing some hobby which you do not understand; ask them to explain it.

Be nice to your own sex; you can't afford to lose the friendship of other girls.

Be ready for whatever fun is on hand and don't be critical. No one is so tiresome and discouraging as the person who always finds fault.

Just remember this, girls, whether you are plain or pretty, the greatest beauty of all is the beauty of expression, and that can only come if your heart is good and sweet.

Keep yourself wholesome by fresh air, exercise and sensible hours, and if, added to that, you are cheerful and kind, you need have no fear that you will not be popular, nor need you fret over your plainness.

Some "Don'ts" for the Hot Weather

By WEX JONES

DON'T read too many don'ts.

DON'T read Summer fiction; it will heat your imagination.

DON'T wear furs.

DON'T pay any attention to hot weather advice.

DON'T go out of your depth if you can't swim, and if you don't like the water DON'T go into it. But if you have a kid who doesn't like the water, throw him in—make him like it. If he howls, a good gulp of sea water will act as a muffler.

DON'T be afraid to rock any small boat in which you may be with a party of girls. It is very amusing to hear them scream, and the pastime is not really dangerous, only about 75 per cent. of such jests proving fatal. Further, you will have a much better chance in the water than the girls, who drown more easily through being hampered with skirts.

If you are a fat man, DON'T wear a tight bathing suit, unless you have a barrel handy.

Should you see a man drowning, DON'T get excited. Remember he's the one to worry, not you. However, should you feel like rescuing him, DON'T forget to have a photographer with you and a brief story of your life for the papers.

DON'T drink alcoholic drinks.

DON'T drink iced drinks.

DON'T drink any drinks.

Drink very sparingly.

Sleep in the open air if possible, but don't fall asleep in the Elevated unless your destination is the end of the line.

DON'T look at thermometers. This practice has resulted in almost innumerable cases of heat prostration. Man, feeling pretty cool, look at therometers on wall against a boiler. Says, "Gee! 98 degrees!" and falls unconscious.

DON'T believe in "heat prostration." There is no such thing.

Should you suffer from heat prostration, DON'T fail to summon a physician. If you are unable to call a physician, DON'T die.

DON'T do anything.

The Insult to Noah

By C. B. Quincy

IN a lamentably picayunish spirit the Society of Naval Architects and Marine Engineers has refused honorary membership to Noah, on the absurd ground that he "was not a designer, but a gamekeeper."

The action is an insult to a great marine architect, engineer, commander and inventor, and I predict that it will prove a boomerang, and bite the hand that conceived it, to use a metaphor as mixed as the brains of the self-styled naval architects.

Noah needs no defense from me; but is there one of these naval architects able to design a ship that could carry even the trophies of Bwana Tumbo, let alone the living and kicking animals?

Is there a man in the society capable of designing a houseboat in which three sisters-in-law could live harmoniously with one another and with their mother-in-law r forty days? Noah did it.

Is there a marine engineer capable of isting elephants and June bugs safely oard with the same winch? Noah d.

Is there a purser who could without argument assign staterooms to the sons of Shem, Ham and Japheth? Noah did it with the fathers.

Is there a steward who could cater for the first cabin and at the same time overlook nothing needed by the ant-eater or caterpillar? It was easy for Noah.

How would the captain of a crack liner like to be adrift on a strange ocean without chart or compass? He would probably commit suicide; whereas Noah never worried, and accomplished a feat never since equalled, that of docking his packet safely on the top of a mountain.

Who, it may be asked, sent the first wireless? Again the answer is Noah. Jack Binns is a commonplace figure beside Noah, umbrella in hand, leaning over the side to see whence his dove-dispatch would be answered.

And this is the man to whom the Society of Naval Architects and Marine Engineers refuses honorary membership! Fortunately, far from injuring Noah, the society's action but belittles itself.

Why Cups Should Have Handles

THERE is a valid hygienic reason, it appears, for providing cups and other drinking vessels with handles. This is according to a writer in the London Lancet, who writes:

"It does not require the refinements of bacteriology or chemistry to indicate that in common places of refreshment the tumbler, the stemless glass or the metal drinking vessel without a handle may readily be the source of contamination to the drinker. It is not customary any longer to drink tea out of a cup without a handle, and there are hygienic reasons in favor of the modern cup.

"It is surely a transgression against sanitary law or cleanly requirement that the edge or rim (or the space near it) of a drinking vessel is used both for lifting that vessel and applying it to the mouth in order that the contents may reach the mouth.

"In public places of refreshment, where it is the rule to serve drinks in tumblers, it is common enough to see the glassful of beer or other beverage handed to the customer by the serving person with his fingers and thumb on the rim—in fact, on that very portion of the glass which comes into contact with the drinker's lips. That is an obviously repulsive proceeding and one which should, as it easily can, be avoided.

"We are quite sure that this argument will appeal to all cleanly persons, and that they will agree that it would be much more satisfactory if vessels with a handle were employed in public places, or if all glasses were provided with a stem."

HE DIDN'T KNOW THE TRUTH

"MY darling," said Mr. Spoonamore, as he finished the third helping of his wife's plum cake, "the lightness and flavor of your excellent cake give a grand and emphatic denial to all the rubbish written in would-be funny papers about the incapacity of young wives to cook."

She nestled close to him.

"Or, perhaps," he continued, "it may be that my own little wifey-pifey is better than all others."

"Oh, ducky," she whispered, "how happy you make me!"

And then she thought how lucky it was she had had the sense to buy that cake at the baker's.

Advice to the Lovelorn---By Beatrice Fairfax

LET HIM GO

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Kindly let me know what you think of a young man who has been taking out and calling on one young lady for three years, and then informs this friend he does not care to marry for some time. He tells her he intends to give his attentions to other young women acquaintances by calling on and taking out several different ones. But he does not want to give her up. Instead, he would like to include her in the circle of his friends. She does not prefer to go out with different young men herself, and wants to know if you think it would be advisable to let this young man go and not accept any attentions from him, or what do you think would be best for her to do?

INTERESTED READER.

I THINK her wisest course would be to let him go. She would not care to be one of the many whom he condescends to honor with his attentions. The most dignified thing for her to do is to quietly let him understand that she does not care to go out with him.

THE RIGHT THING

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

My girl, a gentleman friend and I took a walk one evening and passed the house of another friend (a chum of the gentleman with whom we were walking), whom we knew very well. He asked us up to his house, as his sister had company, and his mother was also at home. Both of my friends were willing to go, but I refused to go, as we (my girl friend and I) never met his sister or any of his folks before, and because it was 9:30 o'clock. Now this young man is angry because I would not go up. Please tell me whether I was right in refusing to do so, and whether this young man is justified in being angry.

R. L.

CONCERNING the lateness of the hour and the fact that neither of you had met his mother or sister, I think you did quite right in refusing the invitation. He should not be angry, and I think that in time he will realize that you were right.

MEET HIM FIRST

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Very nearly a year ago I started a correspondence with a young man I have never met. I have nothing but a description of him, but he has my photo. Now he has told me he loved me very dearly and has asked me to marry him. His letters are in every respect those of a gentleman, and I think a great deal about him and really believe I care for him, but still I am unable to decide what to do, and would be very thankful for your advice.

ANXIOUS.

I DO not think you should decide until you have met him personally and know him for some time. He may not be at all the kind of man you would care to marry. What do you know about him, his business, etc.? It is important that you should know before you think of marrying.

ONE INVITATION ENOUGH

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

About two months ago I met a young gentleman, who has been up to my house three times, and each time with an invitation. Now, what I want to know is: Is it right, after a young man has once been to a girl's house, for her always to ask him up to see her, or is it his place, after he has been up once, to ask himself thereafter?

R. A. I.

IF she has given him one cordial invitation and told him she will always be glad to see him, that is all that is necessary. If she were to keep on asking him it would look as though she were running after him.

To-day's Best Story

ON board one of His Majesty's ships a marine, who had said he was by trade a piano finisher, was employed with the carpenter's crew.

One day the carpenter was sent for and asked if he could repair a hole in the veneer of the ward-room piano, which had been burnt by an officer laying down on it a lighted cigar.

Of course, he recommended the said marine, who was at once sent for.

Somehow, however, work did not seem to progress, and, being taxed with the delay, Joe said:

"But this job is not in my line, sir."

"Not in your line?" was the reply. "But you said you were a piano finisher?"

"Yes, so I was, sir," said he; "but the very last job on the piano is the taking of it home."

Supremacy of Love

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

Copyright, 1909, by American-Journal-Examiner.

AS yon great Sun in his supreme condition
Absorbs small worlds and makes them all his own,
So does my love absorb each vain ambition,
Each outside purpose which my life has known.
Stars cannot shine so near that vast orb's splendor,
They are content to feed his flames of fire;
And so my heart is satisfied to render
Its strength, its all, to meet thy strong desire.

AS in a forest when dead leaves are falling
From all save some perennial green tree,
So one by one I find all pleasures palling
That are not linked with or enjoyed by thee.
And all the homage that the world may proffer
I take as perfumed oils or incense sweet,
And think of it as one thing more to offer
And sacrifice to love at thy dear feet.

I LOVE myself because thou are my lover,
My name seems dear since uttered by thy voice;
Yet argus-eyed I watch and would discover
Each blemish in the object of thy choice.
I coldly sit in judgment on each error,
To my soul's gaze I hold each fault of me,
Until my pride is lost in abject terror,
Lest I become inadequate to thee.

LIKE some swift-rushing and sea-seeking river
Which gathers force the farther on it goes,
So does the current of my love forever
Find added strength and beauty as it flows.
The more I give, the more remains for giving,
The more receive, the more remains to win.
Ah! only in eternities of living
Will life be long enough to love thee in.

The Manicure Lady's Views of Lawyers

"GEORGE," said the Manicure Lady, "did you ever shave a lawyer?"

"Lots of 'em," said the Head Barber. "They're mostly good customers, too, because they know what fees and tips mean."

"I think they are awful tiresome," said the Manicure Lady. "I had one of them come in here to-day to have his nails did. He was just out of Harvard, and he had his first case. He had the papers with him, too. He started to read them to me."

"How much of it was there?" asked the Head Barber.

"That's funny," said the Manicure Lady. "I stopped him right after the start. He didn't like it very well, but I couldn't stand for any of that kind of guff. Why is it, George, that lawyers always says 'said' and 'aforesaid,' and 'the statutes in such case made and provided'?"

'It's All Shop Talk,' Said George

"I don't know," replied the Head Barber. "I suppose every trade has its own patter. Doctors says 'Stick out your tongue,' and lawyers says 'aforesaid,' and barbers says 'how about a nice massage?' It's all in the line of work you take up."

"Just the same," declared the Manicure Lady, "I think there is more hot air about lawyers than there is about doctors or barbers. This particular gent I am speaking of began to kid me in attorney talk, and for a while he thought he was getting away with it. 'Do you like affidavits?' says he. 'I am not sure,' says I, not knowing just what affidavits are. 'Well,' says he, 'I will make an affidavit for you: Commonwealth of Massachusetts. County of Suffolk, ss. John Blackstone, being first duly sworn, deposes and says that he is an attorney residing in the City of Boston. That he has for a long time prior to the manicuring now taking place held a grudge against manicure girls in general, believing that said girls are frivolous, foolish and otherwise non compos mentis, to say nothing of habeas corpus. That now, having viewed the loveliest vision that ever came across the pike, said deponent is willing, anxious and even determined to wed, marry and take to church said manicure lady.' I guess he must have been pulling a little raw work, and so I hurried him out of the chair without putting any of the cute pink stuff on his nails."

"Lawyers Is Treacherous"

"Lawyers is treacherous sometimes," said the Head Barber. "My old man had a brother that had his leg cut off by a switch engine, and a lawyer in the home town took the case on what is called a contingent fee. A contingent fee means that when you lose your lawyer doesn't get anything, and when you win you don't get anything.

"Anyhow, after the old gent's brother had kicked in with about $600 to hire witnesses, he got enough out of the railroad company to buy a wooden leg. He was game about it. He didn't squeal. He bought a rubber leg instead, and fooled the lawyer. Don't listen to the lawyers, kiddo. Pare their nails, if you have to, but don't believe any of their hot air."

"There must be some honest lawyers," suggested the Manicure Lady. "There is Mister Hill, and there was Daniel Webster and Abraham Lincoln. Surely, George, there must be some honest lawyers."

"Yes," said the Head Barber, "surely there must."

Little Bobbie and His Pa

By W. F. Kirk

WELL, sed Pa, wen he caim hoam last nite, talk a good look at me, beekaus I am going to be away from the house a grate deel of the time from now on. I am going to talk Mister O'Meara's job, sed Pa. I think Mister Watts ought to have it, but as long as he refuses I will have to leep into the breach, Pa sed.

The first thing wich I am going to do wen I talk this hard job, Pa sed, is to establish sum new squads. I am going to have a boarding house squad, to see that the peepul wich eats in boarding houses gits better meals & moar of them. For instens, last nite I had dinner with my old pal, Jake Suds, up at his boarding house. The landlady was naimed Missus Mac, & the food was grand.

But she is different from moast boarding house keepers, sed Pa, & that is why I am going to have a boarding house squad, wich will proteck helpless wives wen thare husbands cum hoam & beats them. & I am going to have a squad to keep the little girls from flirting on the way to reehearsal. & I am going to have a end seat hog squad, to keep the passengers on the trolley cars from beeing too polite. I will be a wonder, sed Pa, wen I git all my squads working together.

How do you know that you are fitted for the job? asked Ma. Instinck tells me, sed Pa. From the days of my boyhood up to to-day I have known that I am a wunderful detektiv. As a mere child I caught my father patting the hired gurl's cheek. Later on, wen I was almost a man, I found the bookkeeper in our offis taking sum money out of the till. He gave me half of it, sed Pa, but that is neether here or thare.

I have thought it all over, sed Pa, & thare is only one (1) thing for me to do, & that is my duty to the city of Boston. I am going to talk full charge of things, & if I shud fall on the feeld of battel, mine will be the loss. I know that the situashun reequires a strong man & I am the gent. It is the histry of the world, sed Pa. Wen a strong man is needed, he is moastly always thare. We had Oliver Cromwell & Abraham Linkun, sed Pa. I doant know wich one (1) I reesembel moast, but I am in the saim class.

I doant know, sed Ma, but I wud put you in the class with Joan of Ark. She was burned at the stake, sed Ma, & I doant understand why you have nevver met the saim fate. If you havent been burned, heavings knows it isent beekaus you havent been lit.

Well, sed Pa, now I go. I go to do my duty to the grate city in which I live in.

After about a hour a policeman knocked at the door & Ma went to the door. I am sorry I had to use the nite-stick, sed the policeman, beekaus I know yure husband & think that he is all rite in his way, but he walked up to me, sed the policeman, & asked me why I dident keep my buttons cleener, & wen I talked back to him, he sed he wud have me off the force & then he swoar at me, & then I had to use the stick, sed the policeman. You may think he looks pritty bad, lady, but you ought to have herd what he called me, the policeman sed.

Then Ma took Pa into the house & put sum coald water on his face & then Pa woke up, beekaus he isent used to water in his face wen its gits in his mouth.

Hello, O'Meara, old chap, sed Ma. How is everything down to the offis. How many cops have you beaten? sed Ma.

Pa dident say anything. He jest held his head. It was all full of lumps.

I laugh when Sister calls me "Pig"
Or Pa says "Little sinner"
But O, I'd hate to be called—late

Vaudeville Leads This Week's Bills in the Theatres

THE military act entitled "The Boys in Blue" is an elaborate feature at Keith's Theatre for this holiday week. The "Boys" give a remarkable drill. Then they put on a battle scene which is unusually thrilling. A warship is sunk. Soldiers are killed and wounded. Hundreds of shots are fired. The act is quite in keeping with the Independence Day spirit.

Vinie Daly, a Boston favorite, wins liberal applause with her singing and dancing. Another singing number which is encored is that of Lillian Shaw. Her song, "Let's Get the Umpire's Goat," is a hummer.

George Reno's company of "Misfit Soldiers" is an absurd parody on militarism, coming in funny contrast to the previous military spectacle on the bill. The long, the short, the stout and the thin soldiers all are seen in laughable effect.

There are several other interesting acts on the bill. John F. Wade and company put on a dramatic sketch. Haines and Vidocq, monologuists, work together cleverly. Brown and Ayer have good songs. Their "Moving Day in Jungletown" is a hit. La Triska, the Human Doll, is a unique person. Sellow's novelty circus entertains and Sidney Baxter shows what a man can do wire-walking if he has a knack at it. The Kinetograph shows new and appropriate views.

Orpheum.

Willie Collier's amusing comedy, "Caught in the Rain," is just the sort of light and amusing piece to draw audiences to the Orpheum Theatre during the hot weather. It entertains but does not weary. Two large audiences saw it presented yesterday by the Lindsay Morison Stock Company.

When this comedy was originally given at the Park Theatre in this city it had a good run on account of its amusing situations and general atmosphere of fun. Mr. Morison's players yesterday gave a wholly creditable performance. They followed the original play faithfully and kept up the spirit of comedy fun all the way through.

Mr. Hansel, who plays the part of Dick Crawford, the central figure in the comedy action, handles the role with ease and true appreciation of comedy. Crawford is a quick-witted chap and the role requires constant readiness and a neat turn of manner. Mr. Hansel handled the situations with his usual address.

Miss Edna Bruns was charming as Muriel, making the most of a role that is pretty if not heavy from a dramatic standpoint. Wyrley Birch and Katherine Clinton contributed much to the comedy success and Walter Walker, J. W. Walsh, Rose Morison, Mary Sanders and others handled the remaining holes well. Next week's play at the Orpheum will be "The Ensign."

Globe.

Big holiday crowds yesterday more than enjoyed the excellent programme of vaudeville and pictures at the Globe Theatre. The Nazeroff Troupe of Russian Singers and Dancers introduced the songs and dances of Russia. Madison and Burke are a most lively couple, and their singing, dancing and talking are excellent. Rastus Brown is one of the "prize" dancers of the varieties, the Turner Brothers are a funy pair of acrobatic comedians, and they do novel tricks. Jack Clahane and Miss Florence Mann each have a fine pictorial number. The pictures are of more than ordinary interest, the film, "Washington Under the American Flag," being especially good. A complete change will be made in the picture and song programme on Thursday.

Bowdoin Square.

There is a thrilling production of "Jesse James" at the Bowdoin Square Theatre this week. Friends of Miss Charlotte Hunt, the gifted leading woman of the Bowdoin Square Stock Company, are bearing in mind, however, that the complimentary benefit to Miss Hunt comes next Thursday afternoon and evening with a special bill arranged for that happy occasion. Miss Hunt will appear in scenes from "Princess of Patches," "The Devil" and "Rip Van Winkle," dramas in which she has been particularly successful. In the production of "Rip Van Winkle," the part of Rip will be played by Jay Hunt, the veteran manager of the house.

There will also be a spectacular production of "Salome" on the bill and other big features.

New Palace.

Montgomery and the Healy Sisters, the novelty singers and dancers, are features of the bill at the New Palace Theatre, this week. Other hits include De Blakers's circus of educated dogs and monkeys, the Wade Sisters in comedy singing, Joe Carey, the story teller; Caryl Munroe, the "Rube Girl," and illustrated songs and motion pictures on up-to-date subjects.

Austin & Stone's Museum.

The Naples Troubadours are lending strength to the holiday week bill at Austin & Stone's Museum. They sing and play with artistic excellence. Young Sharkey and his bag punching is an athletic feature of the bill. Sculptor Dugan models cleverly in clay. Erni's act on the parallel bars shows new feats. The Manhattan Girls have a new bill for the week.

Hub.

One of the head-line pictures in the bill for the first part of this week at the Hub Theatre is "The Japanese Invasion," showing the Pacific Coast possibilities. Gertie La Claire and her four "Picks," Arlington and Hilston and Wallie Fitzgerald for the first three days of the week and the Juggling De Lisle and Fielding and Fisher for the final half of the week make up a strong vaudeville program.

Norumbega Park.

Those who missed the numerous holiday festivities at Norumbega Park yesterday may enjoy one of the prime features at the park all this week, however, in the excellent bill at the new open-air theatre there. The headliner is Lamberti, the first of the European importations to appear exclusively at Norumbega this Summer. He is a musical genius who impersonates various composers and then plays their best compositions, either violin or piano. As Lamberti is a master at music as well as at impersonation the result is highly artistic.

Hickey and Nelson show new ideas in comedy singing and dancing. Brown and Wilmot, one of the best dancing teams in vaudeville, win hearty applause. Another hit is the pantomime and comedy juggling of Lorrette and Latina.

Paragon Park.

Over 100,000 people at Paragon Bark, Nantasket Beach, during Saturday, Sunday and yesterday. That is the official record, and one of which Manager Dodge is proud.

A new feature in the free open-air circus is the great English high diver, Bigney, who mounts a 150-fot ladder and dives from that dizzy height into a tank of water only four feet deep. He comes up smiling from this daring plunge. Bigney will make his dive every afternoon and evening this week.

Johnny Maguire's new song, "At Paragon Park," is becoming one of the music hits of the season. Manager Didge is planning a repetition of "Souvenir Day," when he will give away more free copies of the score of this piece.

Luna Park.

The Norins, Oscar and Garde, in their thrilling fire-diving act, head the free open-air bill at Luna Park, Revere Beach, this week. Drew and Richards, wire acrobats, recently with the Bay State show, give novel feats on roller skates, combined with work on the slack and tight wire.

Interest increases in the champion swimming matches between Miss Madeline Berlo, the fifteen-year-old South Boston expert, and other girls who have challenged her for a match. There is a contest next Friday night between Miss Berlo and her contestants.

Up the North Shore.

The North Shore route, taken by the Gloucester line boats, gives an exhilarating ride along one of the prettiest par tof the New England coast. These trips have an added interest since the arrival of President Taft and family at Burgess Point, Beverly. Sailings are made from Central Wharf at 10 a. m. and 2 p. m. on week days and at 2:15 Sundays.

Steamer King Philip.

The steamer King Philip, Captain Ed. Dixon, is making daily runs to the deep sea fishing grounds, where fine catches are made. The King Philip sails from Commercial Wharf daily at 10 a. m., returning by early evening.

Joy Line to New York.

The Joy line to New York, via rail and boat, is being extensively patronized during this vacation and excursion season. Information about boats, trains, etc., may be obtained at the city ticket office, No. 214 Washington street.

Cape Cod Boats.

The steamer Cape Cod of the Boston-Provincetown line takes excursionists on a splendid sail to the first landing place of the Pilgrims and to other historic scenes. Sailings are made from Bay Line Wharf, No. 400 Atlantic avenue, at 9 a. m. week days and 9:30 a. m. Sundays.

Satellite Fishing.

Deep sea fishing trips are being made daily now on the steamer Satellite, Captain Sorenson, which sails at 10 a. m. from Commercial wharf. Women are particularly welcome on these fishing trips, and every arrangement is made for their comfort.

Bass Point Boats.

An hour's delightful sail brings one to Bass Point, Nahant, where picturesque scenery, cooling breezes, band concerts, summer theatre, shore dinners and other diversions and attractions await the pleasure-seeker. Bass Point boats leave on nearly hourly sailings from Otis wharf.

New York Trolley.

The combination trips to New York by trolley and boat are popular. A special trolley leaves Post Office square at 2:30 daily, except Sundays, connecting for the Providence or Fall River boats to New York. Details may be obtained at the Free Trolley Information Bureau, No. 309 Washington street.

THE MYSTERY OF THE YELLOW ROOM

By Gaston Leroux

Synopsis of Preceding Chapters.

All Paris was startled by the mystery of "The Yellow Room," in which an attempt had been made to assassinate the beautiful Mlle. Stangerson.

Monsieur Stangerson, her father, and Daddy Jacques, at work in the laboratory of the ancient chateau, near Paris, heard sounds of a struggle at midnight and two revolver shots. The "Yellow Room" was bolted on the inside and there was no way the assassin could escape. Yet when they broke in with the concierge, they found Mademoiselle alone, senseless and with a wound in the temple. The window was still fastened. How did the assassin escape?

Joseph Rouletabille, sent by the Epoque, a Paris newspaper, is aided in his search by Sinclair, a lawyer, friend of Robert Darzac, the fiance of Mlle. Stangerson.

Frederic Larsan, a noted Parisian detective, refuses to give his version of the mystery until the examining magistrate calls all the witnesses in the laboratory. Darzac pales when the Professor admits that two days before the tragedy his daughter had broken off the engagement.

Frederic Larsan amazes all by declaring that Monsieur Stangerson knows the murderer and allowed him to escape. The old man protests and Rouletabille believes him, declaring he will prove the renowned detective wrong. Rouletabille also comments on Larsan's new cane, of which the detective takes particular care.

Rouletabille learns the cane was bought in Paris by a man resembling Darzac. Larsan said he himself got it in London. Sinclair gets word to see Rouletabille at the chateau and to "bring revolvers." Larsan is now working against Darzac "with might and main," and things look badly for him.

Rouletabille tells how he overheard Darzac and Mlle. Stangerson, at a reception the night of the crime, reading a letter, and Darzac said "Must I then commit a crime?" He believes there is some one trying to stop the marriage.

Many circumstances point to Darzac as the criminal, and Frederic Larsan believes Darzac guilty. Rouletabille opposes this belief, and holds that the assassin was some man closely resembling Darzac, who had made demands upon Mlle. Stangerson for certain papers, that she had refused to comply with.

Explaining his theory to Sinclair, Rouletabille tells the latter that an extraordinarily strange incident took place in the chateau three nights before, and starts to the chateau with him to tell him about it.

"I Expect the Assassin This Evening."

"YOU expect the murderer this evening? Then you know him?"

"I shall know him; but I should be mad to affirm, categorically, at this moment, that I do know him. The mathematical idea I have of the murderer gives results so frightful, so monstrous, that I hope it is still possible that I am mistaken. I hope so, with all my heart!"

"Five minutes ago you did not know the murderer; how can you say that you expect him this evening?"

"Because I know that he must come."

Rouletabille very slowly filled his pipe and lit it. That meant an interesting story. At that moment we heard some one walking in the gallery and passing before our door. Rouletabille listened. The sound of the footsteps died away in the distance.

"Is Frederic Larsan in his room?" I asked, pointedly to the partition.

"No," my friend answered. "He went to Paris this morning—still on the scent of Darzac, who also left for Paris. That matter will turn out badly. I expect that Monsieur Darzac will be arrested in the course of the next week. The worst of it is that everything seems to be in league against him—circumstances, things, people. Not an hour passes without bringing some new evidence against him. The examining magistrate is overwhelmed by it—and blind."

"Frederic Larsan, however, is not a novice," I said.

"I thought so," said Rouletabille, with a slightly contemptuous turn of his lips. "I fancied he was a much abler man. I had, indeed, a great admiration for him, before I got to know his method of working. It's deplorable. He owes his reputation solely to his ability; but he lacks reasoning power—the mathematics of his ideas are very poor."

I loked closely at Rouletabille and could not help smiling, on hearing this boy of eighteen talking of a man who had proved to the world that he was the finest police sleuth-hound in Europe.

"You smile," he said; "you are wrong. I swear I will outwit him—and in a striking way! But I must make haste about it, for he has an enormous start of me—given him by Monsieur Robert Darzac, who is this evening going to increase it still more. Think of it!—every time the murderer comes to the chateau Monsieur Darzac, by a strange fatality, absents himself and refuses to give any account of how he employes his time."

"Every time the assassin comes to the chateau!" I cried. "Has he returned, then?"

"Yes, during the famous night when the strange phenomenon occurred."

I was now going to learn about the astonishing phenomenon to which Rouletabille had made allusion half an hour earlier without giving me any explanation of it. But I had learned never to press Rouletabille in his narratives.

He spoke when the fancy took him and when he judged it to be right. He was less concerned about my curiosity than he was for making a complete summing up for himself of any important matter in which he was interested.

At last, in short, rapid phrases, he acquainted me with things which plunged me into a state bordering on complete bewilderment. Indeed, the results of that still unknown science known as hypnotism, for example, were not more inexplicable than the disappearance of the matter of the murderer at the moment when four perosns were within touch of him.

I speak of hypnotism as I would of electricity, for of the nature of both we are ignorant, and we know little of their laws. I cite these examples because, at the time, the case appeared to me to be only explicable by the inexplicable—that is to say, by an event outside of known natural laws.

The Story in the Note Book.

And yet, if I had had Rouletabille's brain, I should, like him, have had a presentiment of the natural explanation; for the most curious thing about all the mysteries of the Glandier case was the natural manner in which he explained them.

I have among the papers that were sent me by the young man, after the affair was over, a notebook of his, in which a complete account is given of the phenomenon of the disappearance of the "matter" of the assassin, and the thoughts to which it gave rise in the mind of my young friend.

It is preferable, I think, to give the reader this account, rather than continue to reproduce my conversation with Rouletabille; for I should be afraid, in a history of this nature, to add a word that was not in accordance with the strictest truth.

(To Be Continued To-morrow.)

Boston Society Is Now Settled for the Summer

By ELIZABETH ELLIOTT.

THE smart set of Boston, which has been so widely scattered the past few months, is practically settled now for the Summer and ready to begin the strenuous pleasure chase.

Mrs. J. Malcolm Forbes, with her daughters, the Misses Ellen and Amelia, and her son, Henry S. Forbes, have left their country place in Milton and gone for the midsummer to their beautiful home, Naushon Island, Woods Hole. Miss Annie Warren, who was with her sister, Mrs. Charles H. Gibson, at her cottage on Eastern Point during June, has gone to Edgehill, Nahant, for the remainder of the season. To Housewives Who Buy Condensed Milk

Condensed milk is wasteful. It is sweet and unnatural. It has but limited use. Please let us explain why Van Camp's Milk is better.

There are thousands of people who think that condensed milk is very much like Van Camp's.

So we are taking this space, in our mutual interest, to explain where the difference lies.

Condensed Milk is Nearly Half Sugar

A can of condensed milk is about half milk and half sugar.

The sugar is added—from 40 to 50 per cent—both to cheapen and preserve it.

In the old days, before the sterilization of milk was perfected, sugar was added to keep the milk sweet.

And many people still cling to this sweetened milk because they don't know how evaporated milk has displaced it.

Van Camp's is Pure Milk

There is no sugar in it, no starch, no preservative—nothing whatever but milk.

We have evaporating plants in six states, all located close to our dairies.

The fresh milk from the cows is poured into receptacles. Then the air is pumped out, leaving the milk in a vacuum.

Because of that vacuum, a very moderate heat sets the milk boiling, and evaporates the water in steam.

Thus we evaporate two-thirds of the water to reduce the bulk. It is that economy in shipping which makes Van Camp's cost even less than raw milk.

28 Per Cent Solids

This evaporated milk is 28 per cent solids—8 per cent butter fat.

Such is the milk that we put into the cans, and the milk that you get in Van Camp's.

Then the milk is sterilized after the can is sealed. That's the only thing we do to preserve it.

When you open the can, and replace the water, you have whole rich milk without any subtraction or any addition, save a slight almond flavor due to sterilization.

Paying a Double Price for Sugar

Condensed milk may be also evaporated. But each can contains about as much sugar as milk.

Let us figure out what this means.

The large can of Van Camp's contains sixteen ounces of evaporated milk. That means a full pint—a full pound.

If you buy Van Camp's by the case, and replace the water which we take out, you get a rich milk at about six cents per quart.

The 10-cent cans of condensed milk contain only 12 ounces—four ounces less than Van Camp's. And about half the condensed milk is sugar, for which you are paying more than twice what sugar is worth.

Unfit for Cooking

That sugar in condensed milk makes it unfit for cooking. So it serves only table uses.

Van Camp's on the table serves the same purpose, and it goes twice as far because it contains twice the milk.

And Van Camp's gives you for cooking the whole rich milk—the finest milk in America.

Please note what this means.

When you use raw milk for cooking you don't get the whole milk, because milkman's milk separates. The butter fat rises and the solids fall.

In Van Camp's you get all the butter fat, all the solids that exist in the richest milk.

Thus it gives to milk dishes a richness and flavor which you never can get from raw milk.

You lose all this in condensed milk.

Use Only One Milk

You have no need for the milkman when you use Van Camp's. It gives you pure milk for your table and rich milk for your cooking.

It is cheaper than raw milk, because you save the cost of daily delivery.

It is economical because there is no waste. It is convenient for you have it always on hand.

If you prove these facts, you who use condensed milk will gladly change to Van Camp's.

Van Camp's Milk is sold in 5 and 10-cent cans—at your grocer's. We recommend the 10-cent cans because in them you get more for your money than you get in the 5-cent cans. The 10-cent cans contain 16 ounces and the 5-cent cans contain only 6 ounces. It is put up at our dairies in six states by the Van Camp Packing Co., Indianapolis, Ind.

6,000 QUIT IN MINE STRIKE

SYDNEY, C. B., July 6.—The strike of the United Mine Workers of America, which is regarded as a contest between that organization and the Provincial Workingmen's Association, took place at the collieries of the Dominion Coal Company to-day. About 6,000 men failed to appear at the mines to-day.

During the last month the controversy between the two labor organizations has grown very bitter, and anticipating that a resort might be made to violence the Dominion company built stockades around the mines, on the top of which were strong electric wires which could be used in carrying high powered currents. The company also enlisted more than 150 special officers for guard duty.

The strike was practically declared last night, when the members of the United Mine Workers came out of the pits with eir tools.

til reports are received from all the ing mines the full extent of the strike the number of men out will not be tely known.

th sides to-day claimed a majority e miners, and the strike is expected emonstrate the comparative strength he two organizations.

SUFFRAGETTES ARE AFTER KING EDWARD

LONDON, July 6.—The militant suffragettes, trampling English tradition under foot, will counter their warfare from Premier Asquith and move against King Edward.

They threaten to storm Buckingham Palace on Thursday and fight their way past even the King's Guards, the premier troops of the British army, in their efforts to get within the precincts of the palace.

This demonstration threatens to be the most violent London has ever seen, and Scotland Yard is preparing to prevent the women getting near the palace grounds.

This move is planned by the Women's Freedom League, the most active of the suffragette organizations. It was decided upon to-day, when it became plain that Prime Minister Asquith would not accede to their demands and grant them an audience.

REV. ANNA H. SHAW HEADS SUFFRAGISTS

SEATTLE, July 6.—The National Women Suffrage Association yesterday elected the following officers: Rev. Anna H. Shaw of Moylan, Pa., president; Miss Kate M. Gordan of New Orleans, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Harriet Taylor of Chicago, treasurer.

LOCAL MARKET DULL BUT FIRM

STATE STREET, July 6.—The stock market opened dull and firm after its three holiday period. Neither the bull nor bear party showed an aggressive spirit, although there was an underlying tone of strength. There was some local realizing in Agricultural Chemical common stock, causing a slight setback to 45¾.

Superior & Pittsburg was the strong and active feature, selling up a point and a half to 18½ on rather spirited buying. The serious condition of R. D. Evans caused slight heaviness in United Shoe Machinery, although there was no pressure to sell the stock. American Zinc was firm but dull. Amalgamated eased off fractionally to 82¾.

Arbitrage business was practically at a standstill during the forenoon session, although U. S. Steel weakened slightly to 68⅝ on local business. Boston & Maine jumped up two points to 150 on investment demand. Rather free selling appeared in North Butte late in the forenoon, causing a break to 54¾.

Ohio Copper was the local curb exchange feature, being both active and strong. Outside of this specialty curb stocks were dull and steady.

MORGAN STEEL PLAN REJECTED

PARIS, July 6.—J. Pierpont Morgan has failed in his personal effort to persuade M. Caillaux, Minister of Finance, to accept the interpretation of the law of abonnements under which Steel common might be admitted to the Bourse. Mr. Morgan two days after his arrival in Paris "induced M. Caillaux to withhold the announcement of his decision for the present and to listen to the views of M. Sergent, under controller of the currency, who believes he has found a means of reaching the legal difficulties through a new decree interpretative of the abonnement law, without waiting for new legislation."

M. Sergent, after an extended study of the technicalities involved, submitted a report to this effect. M. Caillaux, however, failed to act on this favorable opinion as Mr. Morgan expected he would. Instead he has appointed a commission to inquire into the legislative changes necessary to clear the way for the admission of all foreign securities seeking admission to the Bourse. The real purpose of this commission is to inform the government of the possibility of using the promise of such legislation as a card in the negotiations on the tariff soon to be begun with the United States.

Thus the situation reverts to precisely what it was a fortnight ago. Steel will get no favors from the French Government, will not be listed on the Bourse on Mr. Morgans's plan, and can hope to be listed only under conditions prescribed by new legislation, if any is ever enacted.

The AMERICAN is the great Home paper.

COMELY WOMAN'S BODY IN RIVER

NEW YORK, July 6.—Attired in a fashionable suit of black material, the body of a young woman, as yet unidentified, was found to-day floating in the East River opposite the foot of North Fifth street, Williamsburg. John Owens and Peter Green, who were fishing from the pier, saw the body and brought it ashore. The woman was about twenty-eight years old, 5 feet 7 inches tall and possessed of a wealth of brown hair. She was attired in a black suit of excellent quality and fashionable cut, and wore long white kid gloves.

WOMAN, RAZORS AND POLICE IN MIXUP

Razors, a canoe blanket and a woman's handbag were the weapons which figured in a melee in front of Norumbega Park, Newton, between Patrolman Joseph Seaver and four persons—three men and a woman—whom he was striving to arrest.

Although scratched and bruised, the officer finally succeeded in disarming and capturing the quartet, one of whom put up a stiff fight after being chased nearly a half mile.

WALL ST. NEWS FOR INVESTORS

WALL STREET, New York, July 6.—All the stock markets of America were closed yesterday for the national holiday. The Wall Street district was entirely deserted by brokers. Trading on the London, Paris and Berlin markets was cheerful, and prices for American stocks in London closed steady at an advance over Saturday's closing prices.

$ $ $

There can be no mistaking the tone of the security markets. The evening up of contracts over the triple holiday showed that the public was more anxious to buy than to sell. Leading authorities are looking forward to a bull campaign in August. Bankers are insisting that their clerks take holidays in July this year rather than string them along through the Summer. Everybody is preparing to be at work in August. Such a unanimity of sentiment has seldom before been witnessed. The optimism of Wall Street and of the financial world in general is exactly the reverse of the pessimism of that same world two years ago.

$ $ $

Undoubtedly the bear has his periods of usefulness. He is an antidote for individual or specific inflation. But as an indiscriminate and incessant speculator he will not do in the United States. The proof of this is that the investor, however untimely he may invest, ends with a profit if he has patience and has made a common-sense investment. A short commitment long outstanding, as a rule, ends in a heavy debit.

$ $ $

Hot weather in Washington furnishes one good reason for this cheerful feeling. As between the income tax and a corporation tax the financial world in general prefers the latter, because it will be temporary. The promise has been made in high places that it will be repealed within two years. An income tax, on the other hand, would undoubtedly be permanent, because once in operation no administration would dare repeal it and go before the public for votes.

$ $ $

The subject of currency is so important that every man, woman and child in the republic should be made to understand the situation. Every year in the past the banks have been compelled to sell out investments, call loans and in other ways provide at least $75,000,000 at this time of the year to enable the farmers to market their crops. Only a nominal amount will have to be raised this year, because the Aldrich law permits the issue of $500,000,000 of currency, with nothing put up as security except bonds, stocks or other securities that the Secretary of the Treasury in his discretion may accept.

$ $ $

As there has been a panic, the normal amount of money is not employed in business, leaving a surplus from that amount. In addition, there is a redundancy of the ordinary bank notes based on Government bonds. With this flood of money the power to issue $500,000,000 more makes a money stringency an impossibility. This was emphasized by the fact that on June 30, on the eve of the second largest disbursement of dividends and interest for the year, the call money rate was only 2 per cent.

$ $ $

Never in the history of the world was such a situation known as prevails in America to-day. What the outcome will be not even the wisest financier has more than a vague idea. There is a well founded belief that the first effect will be a great boom in the stock market.

$ $ $

To be sure, America will have the greatest corn crop in the history of the republic. But America needs 25 per cent. more eggs and pork and poultry and beef and cream and milk than it did fifteen years ago, and we, therefore, need all the corn that we can produce and more. There is going to be no slump in corn, either, or in oats, for Europeans are paying 15 per cent. more for oats and 100 per cent. higher prices for hay than Americans. The day of cheap corn, hay and oats is vanishing fast along with cheap flour.

$ $ $

The bears in wheat, who keep shouting that people will eat corn and oats and beets and potatoes rather than pay $1.50 a bushel for wheat, had better study economic conditions in Europe. Europeans have cheaper potatoes and vegetables than Americans, and yet they are consuming more flour than ever and paying considerably more than $1.50 a bushel for it.

$ $ $

The world's consumption of wheat in 1908 was 3,200,000,000 bushels. The production was only 3,000,000,000. The consumption in 1909 will not be under 3,250,000,000, and the production will most certainly not exceed 3,100,000,000 bushels. The world's surplus is nearly exhausted, and there will be a shortage of 150,000,000 bushels before July, 1910. There is no wheat famine in sight yet, but readers of this column will do well to keep a hundred yards away from folks insane enough to sell wheat short.

$ $ $

The earnings of the United States Steel Corporation for the June quarter—April, May and June—are variously estimated. The lowest conjecture is $25,000,000 net; the highest estimate $30,000,000. The latter figure appears to be somewhat too great.

The radiancy emanated from the admitted fact that orders have poured in copiously since the middle of May; but an important deduction has not been made, namely, that the greatly revived business is fulfilled in previous revivals—at least $4 a ton under the average received before the changes in quotations were made earlier in the year.

There may be another kind of distribution simultaneously with the quarterly statement. An "extra" in some form, in addition to the regular dividend of ½ of 1 per cent. is expected by some stockholders, an expectation which, however, has not been encouraged by anything confirmatory from an official quarter.

WOMAN BETRAYS OLD SWEETHEART

He has been taken from Worcester county jail to New Haven to answer to the charge of robbery and attempted murder. The woman who betrayed him, Mrs. Mary Sabadas, goes along with him as a witness.

BROCKTON KILLING LAID TO JEALOUSY

BROCKTON, July 6.—Jealousy is said to have been the cause of the murder of Stanislaw Posinskis, twenty-five years old and unmarried. His head was nearly blown off by a charge from a shot gun which, the police say, was held by a fellow-workman and neighbor, Norman Yeuzuilewitz, twenty-nine years old and married. The alleged slayer is arraigned here to-day.

The two men worked in the same shoe factory in Randolph and had been in the country about a year. They had rooms near each other, and it is said that Yeuzuiklewitz was jealous of Posinskis's attentions to his wife.

GREAT VIEW FROM PILGRIM MONUMENT

Visitors at Provincetown are exclaiming over the wonderful view which the top of the Pilgrim Monument will afford when completed. From the top of Town Hill, where the monument stands, one can see the ocean and the bay. It is believed that Boston Light on one side and Nantucket on the other will be distinctly visible. The top of the monument will be accessible to visitors when completed by means of an inclined plane modeled after the famous Campanile of St. Mark's at Venice. Provincetown is reached by steamer Cape Cod, which leaves Bay Line wharf at 9 in the morning.

SHIP MEETS ICE AND LIGHTNING

The voyage of the Laurentian from Glasgow, now at the Mystic docks, was twice rendered exciting, once by icebergs and once by a furious electric storm. For hours the Laurentian threaded her way at night among the bergs, and two nights later was the centre of an electric disturbance of great intensity, blue lightning playing around her masts and funnel and sending her passengers to their cabins in terror. A concert which was in progress when the storm broke was immediately abandoned.

BALLOONIST LANDS IN A BABY CARRIAGE

A one-armed balloonist, in an ascent from the Curtiss estate, near Jamaica Pond, did a triple parachute drop and landed in a baby carriage. A. E. Berrys is his name and he was hired to perform the major portion of the feat by the Jamaica Plain Citizens' Association.

He ascended in the presence of several hundred. When high above the Boylston station of the N. Y., N. H. & H. he dropped from his balloon and, executing three parachute drops, landed in a baby carriage, which was empty, in front of No. 7 Burr street.

This company is the owner of the famous Palmilla Mines in Parral, Mexico, formerly owned by Pedro Alvarado, having recently secured full ownership of the property, though the company was originally formed with the same capital stock to secure a 15-year lease of the property on a 55% royalty basis. The mines are located 2½ miles from the City of Parral, Chihuahua, Mexico, connected by a branch of the Mexican Central, called the Parral & Durango R. R., which passes within one mile of the property.

These properties were owned by the father of Pedro Alvarado. No considerable mining was done until 1898, but from that time until 1906 Pedro Alvarado produced, from the best data obtainable, $25,000,000 (Mexican). Through the careless manner in which the property was run it is estimated that at least 25% of the total value of the ore was stolen.

The property is situated on what is known as Palmilla Hill, which rises abruptly from 300 to 500 feet above the surrounding country. This hill seems to be the vein centre of the district, as veins enter it from many directions.

The development has disclosed two well-defined ore chutes. These ore chutes, designated as the North and South chute, are connected by a drift on the 600-ft. level on the vein, carrying ore of commercial value. The ores carry gold and silver in the average proportion of one-third gold and two-thirds silver in value. At the 600-ft. level or lowest level these chutes are 100 feet wide.

The property is well equipped throughout with good shaft houses, blacksmith and machine shops, dwelling houses, etc., with up-to-date hoisting and pump equipment and also with an aerial tram 2½ miles in length from the mine to the railroad at Parral.

Work Done by Present Management

The following letter from Prest. A. J. McQuatters shows the work that has been accomplished by the present management:

To Directors and Stockholders. Dallas, Texas, June 25, 1909.

Gentlemen: Since accepting the presidency of the Alvarado Consolidated Mines Co. I have been in very close touch with its local management, in fact, I have been almost constantly at the property.

From an examination of the mines at that time it was evident that we had two very important problems confronting us; first, the successful handling of the water in the mine, and second, to prove the mine to depth.

To accomplish these results we first installed a large and adequate pumping plant on the 6th level and are now handling the water with comparative ease and at a very nominal expense. We retimbered a number of the shafts and installed up-to-date electrical hoisting equipment. A large working tunnel was driven through the Palmilla hill for a distance of 1100 feet, which taps the mine workings at 437 feet below the collar of the shaft, thereby reducing the water and ore lift 437 feet. A three-compartment shaft was started at the tunnel level and is now down to a depth of 350 feet below that point, or 200 feet below the lowest point worked by Alvarado, and is still being sunk at the rate of 2½ feet per day. At the bottom of the new shaft, or the 800-ft. level, we are cross-cutting and drifting through the ore bodies, which work, when complete, will give us enormous ore reserves, as we will have opened 200 feet of virgin ground.

The upper levels have been carefully examined by our engineers, who report more than 300,000 tons of milling ore left in the mine by Alvarado and blocked out by us, that will average net values, after treatment charges, of $7.00 per ton (gold). We have over 250,000 tons of ore already mined and now on the surface, from which we have taken over 3000 samples, the assays from which indicate net values, after deducting treatment charges, of $6.00 per ton gold.

We have been prospecting the bottom of the mine, where we expect to secure our high grade ore, with diamond drills to an average depth of 225 feet. A large number of assays from these drill holes showed ore of fabulous richness, as well as proving the existence of large bodies of milling ore. As the ore bodies are more than 100 feet wide at this depth, with a combined length of more than 750 feet, the quantity of ore indicated from the diamond drill prospecting would be from 900,000 to 1,100,000 tons. Taking the average of the high-grade and the milling ore and it is safe to figure upon the company realizing very handsome profits in the treatment of this tonnage.

As we have demonstrated by diamond drills that the ore bodies at a depth of 225 feet below the 600-ft. level are over 100 feet wide there is of course every reason to believe that the values and size of the bodies continue at great depths.

Having solved the problems of handling the water and having proven the permanency of the veins and values below the water level and having demonstrated in a satisfactory manner that the ore yields readily to treatment and that excellent results are obtained, I unhesitatingly recommend the immediate construction of a cyanide mill of a daily capacity of 1000 tons, to be constructed in units of 250 tons each.

Very truly yours,
(Signed) A. J. McQUATTERS, President.

The New Mill

In order to build the new mill it is proposed to organize a Milling Company with a capital of $1,000,000, divided into 1,000,000 shares, par value $1, to treat the ores of the Alvarado Consolidated Mines Co. and the ores of other nearby mines. The shares of the milling company will be given to the stockholders of the Alvarado Consolidated Mines Co. as a bonus, one share of Milling Co. stock for each share of Alvarado Consolidated Mines Co. stock so purchased and can only be obtained this way.

THE DIRECTORS OF THE MILLING CO. ARE:

JAMES I. LONG, Parral, Mex.
F. W. CLIFFORD, Minneapolis, Prest. Cream of Wheat Co.
J. DUDLEY CLARK of H. C. Wainwright & Co., Bankers, Boston.
SPENCER W. RICHARDSON, Retired Senior Member of Richardson, Hill & Co., Bankers, Boston.
L. S. GILLETTE, Capitalist, Minneapolis, Minn.

The proceeds from the sale of 200,000 shares of the capital stock of the Alvarado Consolidated Mines Co. are to be used in paying underwriters' commissions, all expenses and commissions in the flotations of its securities and the buying of an interest in the MILLING COMPANY, so that said MILLING COMPANY will have in its treasury at least $750,000 in cash to build and equip a 1000-ton mill.

THESE 200,000 SHARES OF TREASURY STOCK (WITH A BONUS OF ONE SHARE OF MILLING STOCK) ARE NOW OFFERED FOR PUBLIC SUBSCRIPTION AT $5 PER SHARE, AS FOLLOWS:

$2 per share to accompany the application for subscription; and the balance of $3 per share payable within 10 days after notice of final allotment

If less than the number of shares applied for is allotted, the sum paid on subscription will be credited on the number of shares allotted. On failure to make final payment, the amount paid on subscription will be liable to forfeiture.

Applications for subscriptions should be made to the undersigned and all checks made payable to the Alvarado Consolidated Mines Co.

The subscription list will be opened on July 8th, and will be closed on the following day, though the company reserves the right to close the list at any time without notice, to reject any subscription and to allot any smaller amounts than applied for.

The entire issue of stock now being offered has been fully underwritten by responsible parties, under which agreement the underwriters are bound to take all of the stock not subscribed for by the public.

HARRIMAN IS MAKING PLANS TO RETIRE

NEW YORK, July 6.—E. H. Harriman is preparing to retire from active management of his great chain of railroads.

It will be no surprise to those close to Mr. Harriman if he should announce his retirement when he returns from Europe, where he is living in an effort to rebuild his failing health. A man whose business relations with him are very close told the AMERICAN yesterday that Mr. Harriman had admitted, on the eve of sailing, that he would let go of the reins of railroad control within eighteen months at the very latest.

"As soon as I can find some youngster to shoulder the burden, I'll lay it down," he said in a recent interview. Perhaps he has found the youngster, and at sixty-one will begin a lifelong rest such as Mr. Rockefeller is taking.

In Physical Breakdown.

He has discovered that, although he has amassed perhaps $100,000,000 and can control absolutely any amount of dollars he wants to, as he controls the railroads of the United States, there is one thing he can't begin to control—that is his physical condition. He has found, just as John D. Rockefeller found a few years back, that a multimillionaire is precisely like any other bit of human machinery. He runs down and wears out. And his millions don't put spring into his step or vigor into his body.

Hence this trip to Europe by Mr. Harriman—and also various other expeditions in search of health which he has made in the last couple of years. It is just beginning to be realized by his friends that he has been as keen after his own welfare recently as he has been eager after railroads.

It has been a more puzzling problem for him, too. He could tell what was the matter with a 1,000-mile line of track after a flying trip over it. But he couldn't learn what was the matter with himself after months of close study and the aid of all sorts of highly paid specialists. He has been sort of a technical medical problem for the doctors. They all disagree over him.

He has been sort of a stock market barometer also. When reports have been spread that he was in bad health, down went the securities of his railroads. When he was reported as improved, up moved the prices. Unscrupulous Wall Street operators have traded upon this, and have gone so far once or twice as to circulate rumors of his death to depress certain stocks.

On Luxurious "Ranch."

The importance of Mr. Harriman's health has only been realized during the past couple of years, after he had spanned the continent with his railroads and had begun to tower above the rest of the operators.

First he had plain rheumatism of the back, the doctors said. They hooked him up into a harness of whalebone and linen. "It isn't a corset, at all," he said with indignation. Then he took, in the Summer of 1907, his first vacation in many years. He established a "ranch" on Pelican Bay, Oregon, and stayed there during all of the hot period. And such a "ranch," too real ranchers looked at it in awe. It was of logs, true enough, but in connection with each log room was a porcelain bath, and there were electric lights, rare rugs and even a private refrigerating plant in connection with the "cabin." Private telegraph wires connected it with the outside world.

Mr. Harriman came back to civilization apparently much improved, but it was not long before his trouble was reported again in more complicated language. This time, it was said, there had been "a shrinkage of the cartilages separating the lower vertebrae of the spine."

FREE SHOW AT WONDERLAND

The Wonderland management is preparing a great free spectacle to be presented daily and nightly in the open-air arena, which, in other years, has provided park patrons with such thrilling features, such as "The Dip of Death" and "Looping the Loop."

The new feature will be "Cinderella," and it will be presented at an early date. The company is training for its presentation. Announcement of the details is expected daily. The production will include fifty persons, most of them beautiful, talented girls, splendidly costumed.

The combination ticket plan, giving ten shows and park admission, will be continued, together with the SUNDAY AMERICAN free ticket arrangement, which gives park admission and a 10-cent show free, and twelve half-fare tickets to the park's leading attractions two days every week.

The absolutely free SUNDAY AMERICAN tickets for use to-day and to-morrow are for park admission and the Girl Minstrels. This means a saving of 20 cents. The twelve half-fare coupons for rides and park productions mean that 10-cent shows may be seen for 5 cents and a ticket, and the 5-cent attractions at the rate of two admissions for 5 cents and a free ticket.

The free attraction has been conceived to meet the increasing park patronage. The management promises that it will be the most satisfactory free open-air attraction ever presented in an Eastern park. All who purchase admission to the park can enjoy it free.

Children under twelve are admitted free to Wonderland up to 6 o'clock, if accompanied by adults.

HOLIDAY CROWDS AT LEXINGTON PARK

Lexington Park is enjoying the greatest patronage in its history. In no other season has it offered such inducements to visitors. It is more popular than ever because of its seventy acres of groveland, its baseball field and its multitude of free devices for amusement of young and old.

The biggest free menagerie in the world is maintained there. The woods are hung with swings and rustic seats, and picnic tables abound.

The theatre is free on afternoons. The toboggan and merry-go-round are always free. The ballroom and restaurant are reasonable in price.

It is an ideal spot for a Summer day or evening. The SUNDAY AMERICAN gives free tickets to Lexington Park each week.

DYING, 3 HURT IN STABBING AT DANCE

One man is dying, another may die and a third is in a serious condition at the Lynn Hospital as the result of a stabbing affray at a dance at No. 672 Humphrey street in Swampscott, where a party of Italians became jealous at rival attentions to a woman. A fourth Italian, Tancroll Freddie, aged thirty-five, is locked up in the police station, charged with assault with a dangerous weapon.

The injured men are Tony Marrara, aged thirty-two, who is dying; State Antonio, thirty, who received multiple wounds and may not live, and Rabiola Tendora, twenty-nine, who is in a serious condition.

Harriman Living on BREAD AND BEER —Plenty of Beer

This Emphasizes the Difference Between Poisonous Drinks and the Milder Stimulants

Copyright, 1909, by American-Journal-Examiner

The sincere, well-meaning prohibition advocates were probably startled when they learned that E. H. Harriman, the great railroad man, had been ordered by his doctor to take up a "bread and beer diet," AND THAT HARRIMAN HAS GREATLY IMPROVED IN HEALTH.

Harriman, of course, is enormously rich. He has lived in the distinctly American way, too much work, too little nourishment, and he has broken down in the usual American way.

He goes to the greatest specialist in the world, Dr. Struempell, at Semmering, in Austria. He is told that he must get fatter and stronger. He is ordered to take, under the doctor's direction, good bread—bread twenty-four hours old, not fresh bread—and PLENTY OF GOOD, LIGHT BEER.

The object of the doctor ordering Harriman to take the bread and the beer is to increase his strength and his weight, enabling him to create new, sound tissue with the least possible drain upon his vitality.

The beer, a mild stimulant, draws the blood to the stomach, where it is needed in the digestive process. In addition to its function as a stimulant, bringing the blood to the digestive tract, the beer provides nourishment easily absorbed. And Harriman, who has millions at his command, is really ordered by the doctor to live as any workingman, or person in humble conditions might live—simple things, a very mild, nourishing stimulant, and rest.

In discussing TRUE TEMPERANCE, we have tried to impress on our readers, and on our good and well-meaning friends, the prohibitionists, the fact that to make men temperate you must not ride a hobby, but tell the truth and preach moderation.

Every doctor of the first class in the world knows that the diet prescribed for Harriman is wise, just what he needs.

Every good doctor, and every sane man, would have been horrified and amazed if he had read that, instead of bread and beer, Harriman had been ordered to take bread AND WHISKEY. Everybody would have said, "Bread AND WHISKEY! Why the doctor is crazy, and Harriman won't live a month."

And that would be perfectly true. This statement concerning Harriman, which goes all over the world, is important, for it emphasizes, on the authority of a great medical man, the essential difference between the mild stimulants, light, natural wines and beers, and the highly alcoholic poisons, the whiskeys, gins and brandies, that cause drunkenness, crime and ruin.

The mild stimulants, beers and light wines, are the temperate drinks of temperate men and temperate nations. In moderation they are beneficial, and their use tends to make men temperate and moderate.

Whiskey, gin and all the spirituous liquors are DRUGS, not drinks. They have their use as drugs, along with morphine, cocaine, digitalis and so on, but they are useful only as drugs, and they should be treated as drugs.

If it is possible to restore Harriman to health, after the outrageous demands that he has made upon his system, this German doctor will do it with the bread and the beer and rest.

With bread and whiskey Harriman WOULD NOT LIVE A MONTH. We ask the prohibitionists to think this over.

Why not fight the whiskey, and the gin, the drugs that make men drunkards, and at the same time encourage the normal beverages of temperate men and temperate nations?

If you put all drinks in the same category, the light wine and the beer that ninety successful, temperate men out of a hundred always use, in the same class with whiskey, gin and brandy, you deceive the public. You tell the young man that to drink ANYTHING means drunkenness, and you convince him that when he does drink he might as well drink whiskey as anything else.

Thus, with the best intentions, you may make a drunkard of him.

It's a good thing to PREACH and advise total abstinence. Let the man who CAN DO SO take water only.

Advise teetotalism, but don't try to enforce it by prohibition laws.

Advise men also not to smoke tobacco. The young man who does not smoke will save money and get ahead more quickly. If he can get along without tobacco, so much the better for him. But don't try to force him by law to give up tobacco.

Fight opium, morphine, whiskey, gin and brandy—these things are poison, they mean ruin, death and crime.

But don't fight them with tyranny, or bigotry, for you can't succeed in that way.

Let the mild, natural drinks of temperate people, light beers and wines, be sold freely and crowd out the drug habit. If the Chinese smoked tobacco, they would not smoke opium. That would be a blessing for China.

If the whiskey drinker took light beer or wine only, and no whiskey, that would be a blessing for him.

The man who leads a strictly normal life, who is not overworked, and not over-tired, can perhaps get along with no stimulant whatever, if he has great strength of mind.

But if he works very hard, and breaks himself down, he is actually compelled, as Mr Harriman now is, to build himself up on a normal, temperate drink.

Ninety per cent. of all men, and probably 99 per cent., will drink stimulants more or less. If you pass laws that make it impossible for them to get the mild stimulants openly, THEY WILL GET THE VIOLENT, POISONOUS DRINKS SECRETLY, AND YOU MAKE THEM DRUNKARDS.

Advocate true temperance, fight, tax, and if possible, drive out whiskey.

Crowd out whiskey, morphine, cocaine, etc.

Make it very easy for the hardworking man to get his light beer openly, sociably, every day in the year. Enable the sedentary man, the clerk, the man whose muscles and liver are sluggish, to take his glass of light red wine or white wine.

Realize that education and self-control mean temperance. Bigotry, intolerance, control of a majority by the minority, will cause secret drunkenness, and never TRUE TEMPERANCE.

This we shall repeat until lawmakers that often act hypocritically—for instance, when they deprive the soldier of his beer canteen, and drive him to whiskey—and the well-meaning prohibitionist, who acts so sincerely, shall realize that real liberty consists of driving out the use of drugs by encouraging sociable, open, decent use of tobacco and the temperate drinks of temperate men and wo

DR. PARKHURST'S ARTICLE —ON— Literature —VS.— Journalism

Written for the American

By DR. C. H. PARKHURST

THE Imperial Congress, in session in London, has now adjourned until the 25th of June. The discussions thus far maintained have yielded three positive results.

First—Party lines are erased so far as relates to the question of national defences.

Second—There is accomplished a definite and loyal clustering of the colonies around the mother country and an unprecedented solidifying of the entire British empire.

Third—The unanimous position taken by the statesmen in whom the people of Great Britain and the colonies especially trust, that the present situation is serious and full of menace, has put an effectual stop to all such notion as that existing perturbation is irrational and panicky.

Having hammered away for three days on this matter of imperial defences, till nothing more could be said that had not already been spoken, the conference finally paid its respects, in a somewhat irresolute and desultory way, to a topic rather more germane to the advertised purpose of the convention, viz., the Relation of Journalism to Literature.

Even Lord Morley did not state the relations of journalism to literature, and hardly made the attempt to do so. He scarcely went further than to dismiss with disapproval the suggestion that "journalism is literature in a hurry."

That would seem to mean that journalism is literature that is hastily, and therefore imperfectly, done.

There is in that, doubtless, an element that is true, although the two kinds of writing cannot be definitely separated.

Portions, small portions, of what appear in the newspapers have a literary value, while much that is classed as literature is journalistic in quality, and poor at that.

Most of what appears under the head of journalism is certainly a hurried product. It bears the marks of haste.

The voluminous mass of matter required in order to fill the blanket sheets now in vogue precludes the possibility of delicate finish.

"Journalism Stuff Paid for at So Much a Pound"

Stuff is sometimes paid for at so much an inch, possibly at so many dollars per pound.

It has been said that this monstrosity of output will work its own reaction, and that thus the quality of what is journalistically composed will be able to approach more nearly to a literary quality.

Quality of composition will almost certainly vary inversely with quantity—the greater the bulk the less its value.

But there is another constituent feature of what is generally understood by literature that distinguishes it from the usual proprieties of journalism.

Literature deals rather with that which is permanent, while journalism is a kind of quick, fungus growth that draws its nourishment from the instant and the transient.

It is not often that we encounter in a daily newspaper any article that we care to cut out and preserve for more complete digestion or for future use or reference.

This is not necessarily a criticism upon journalism, but is simply a statement of fact, and indicates the particular function which the newspaper has chosen for itself.

Literature, on the contrary, pays little attention to the calendar. What it deals with is independent of date. Its concern is primarily with what does not change.

What it writes, or tries to write, is true to-day and will be true to-morrow, perhaps more evidently true day after tomorrow than it will seem to be tomorrow.

Like Good Wine, Literature Grows Better with Age

We might say of literature, therefore, that, like good wine and like certain classes of instruments, it wins value by its very age.

That is what we mean by saying that there are certain books which live and that will never become passe so long as human minds and human hearts are what they are to-day.

They graze so closely upon the edge of what is intrinsic and indestructible in man that they never part with their validity, but are destined rather to gain in validity according as man becomes more and more himself, more and more human.

To such writings we apply the name "classic," by which we understand that they are of a quality to survive all that is fluctuating in the nature of man, all that is transient in the current of events, a part, therefore, of the coin current in the market of the inextinguishable value of human thought and affection.
